BARTLEY FALLON.	JAMES RYAN.
MRS. FALLON.	MRS. TARPEY.
JACK SMITH.	MRS. TULLY.
SHAWN EARLY.	A Policeman (JO MUL- DOON).
TIM CASEY.	A Removable Magistrate.

SPREADING THE NEWS

SCENE : The outskirts of a Fair. An Apple Stall. Mrs. Tarpey sitting at it. Magistrate and Policeman enter.

Magistrate. So that is the Fair Green. Cattle and sheep and mud. No system. What a repulsive sight !

Policeman. That is so, indeed.

Magistrate. I suppose there is a good deal of disorder in this place ?

Policeman. There is.

Magistrate. Common assault ?

Policeman. It's common enough.

Magistrate. Agrarian crime, no doubt ?

Policeman. That is so.

Magistrate. Boycotting^a? Maiming of cattle ? Firing into houses ?

Policeman. There was one time, and there might be again.

Magistrate. That is bad. Does it go any farther than that ?

Policeman. Far enough, indeed.

Magistrate. Homicide, then ! This district

4 Spreading the News

has been shamefully neglected ! I will change all that. When I was in the Andaman Islands, my system never failed. Yes, yes, I will change all that. What has that woman on her stall ?

Policeman. Apples mostly—and sweets.

Magistrate. Just see if there are any unlicensed goods underneath—spirits or the like. We had evasions of the salt tax in the Andaman Islands.

Policeman (sniffing cautiously and upsetting a heap of apples). I see no spirits here—or salt.

Magistrate (to Mrs. Tarpey). Do you know this town well, my good woman ?

Mrs. Tarpey (holding out some apples). A penny the half-dozen, your honour ?

Policeman (shouting). The gentleman is asking do you know the town ! He's the new magistrate !

Mrs. Tarpey (rising and ducking). Do I know the town ? I do, to be sure.

Magistrate (shouting). What is its chief business ?

Mrs. Tarpey. Business, is it ? What business would the people here have but to be minding one another's business ?

Magistrate. I mean what trade have they ?

Spreading the News 5

Mrs. Tarpey. Not a trade. No trade at all but to be talking.

Magistrate. I shall learn nothing here.

(James Ryan comes in, pipe in mouth.

Seeing Magistrate he retreats quickly, taking pipe from mouth.

Magistrate. The smoke from that man's pipe had a greenish look; he may be growing unlicensed tobacco at home. I wish I had brought my telescope to this district. Come to the post-office, I will telegraph for it. I found it very useful in the Andaman Islands.

Mrs. Tarpey. Bad luck to Jo Muldoon, knocking my apples this way and that way. (Begins arranging them.) Showing off he was to the new magistrate.

(Enter Bartley Fallon and Mrs. Fallon.

Bartley. Indeed it's a poor country and a scarce country to be living in. But I'm thinking if I went to America it's long ago the day I'd be dead!

Mrs. Fallon. So you might, indeed.

(She puts her basket on a barrel and begins putting parcels in it, taking them from under her cloak.

Bartley. And it's a great expense for a poor man to be buried in America.

6 Spreading the News

Mrs. Fallon. Never fear, Bartley Fallon, but I'll give you a good burying the day you'll die.

Bartley. Maybe it's yourself will be buried in the graveyard of Cloonmara before me, Mary Fallon, and I myself that will be dying unbeknownst some night, and no one a-near me. And the cat itself may be gone straying through the country, and the mice squealing over the quilt.

Mrs. Fallon. Leave off talking of dying. It might be twenty years you'll be living yet.

Bartley (with a deep sigh). I'm thinking if I'll be living at the end of twenty years, it's a very old man I'll be then !

Mrs. Tarpey (turns and sees them). Good morrow, Bartley Fallon ; good morrow, Mrs. Fallon. Well, Bartley, you'll find no cause for complaining to-day ; they are all saying it was a good fair.

Bartley (raising his voice). It was not a good fair, Mrs. Tarpey. It was a scattered sort of a fair. If we didn't expect more, we got less. That's the way with me always ; whatever I have to sell goes down and whatever I have to buy goes up. If there's ever any misfortune coming to this world, it's on myself it pitches, like a flock of crows on seed potatoes.

Mrs. Fallon. Leave off talking of misfortunes.

Spreading the News 7

and listen to Jack Smith that is coming the way, and he singing.

(Voice of Jack Smith heard singing :

• I thought, my first love,

There'd be but one house between you and me,
And I thought I would find Yourself coaxing my child on your knee.

Over the tide

I would leap with the leap of a swan,
Till I came to the side

Of the wife of the Red-haired man !

• (Jack Smith comes in ; he is a red-haired man, and is carrying a hayfork.

Mrs. Tarpey. That should be a good song if I had my hearing.

Mrs. Fallon (shouting). It's " The Red-haired Man's Wife."

Mrs. Tarpey. I know it well. That's the song that has a skin on it !

(She turns her back to them and goes on • arranging her apples.

Mrs. Fallon. Where's herself, Jack Smith ?

Jack Smith. She was delayed with her washing ; bleaching the clothes on the hedge she is, and she daren't leave them, with all the tinkers that do be passing to the fair. It isn't to the fair I came myself, but up to the Five Acre Meadow I'm going, where I have a contract for the hay. We'll get a share of it into tramps to-day. (He lays down hayfork and lights his pipe).

Spreading the News

Bartley. You will not get it into tramps to-day. The rain will be down on it by evening, and on myself too. It's seldom I ever started on a journey but the rain would come down on me before I'd find any place of shelter.

Jack Smith. If it didn't itself, Bartley, it is my belief you would carry a leaky pail on your head in place of a hat, the way you'd not be without some cause of complaining.

(A voice heard "Go on, now, go on out o' that. Go on I say.")

Jack Smith. Look at that young mare of Pat Ryan's that is backing into Shaughnessy's bullocks with the dint of the crowd! Don't be daunted, Pat, I'll give you a hand with her.

(He goes out, leaving his hayfork.)

Mrs. Fallon. It's time for ourselves to be going home. I have all I bought put in the basket. Look at there, Jack Smith's hayfork he left after him! He'll be wanting it. (Calls) Jack Smith! Jack Smith!—He's gone through the crowd—hurry after him, Bartley, he'll be wanting it.

Bartley. I'll do that. This is no safe place to be leaving it. (He takes up fork awkwardly and upsets the basket.) Look at that now! If there is any basket in the fair upset, it must be our own basket ! • (He goes out to right.)

Mrs. Fallon. Get out of that ! It is your own fault, it is. Talk of misfortunes and misfortunes will come. Glory be ! Look at my new egg-cups rolling in every part—and my two pound of sugar with the paper broke—

Mrs. Tarpey (turning from stall). God help us, Mrs. Fallon, what happened your basket ?

Mrs. Fallon. It's himself that knocked it down, bad manners to him. (Putting things up.) My grand sugar that's destroyed, and he'll not drink his tea without it. I had best go back to the shop for more, much good may it do him !
(Enter Tim Casey.)

Tim Casey. Where is Bartley Fallon, Mrs. Fallon ? I want a word with him before he'll leave the fair. I was afraid he might have gone home by this, for he's a temperate man.

Mrs. Fallon. I wish he did go home ! It'd be best for me if he went home straight from the fair green, or if he never came with me at all ! Where is he, is it ? He's gone up the road (Jerks elbow) following Jack Smith with a hayfork. (She goes out to left.)

Tim Casey. Following Jack Smith with a hayfork ! Did ever any one hear the like of that. (Shouts.) Did you hear that news, Mrs. Tarpey ?

Spreading the News

• Mrs. Tarpey. I heard no news at all.

Tim Casey. Some dispute I suppose it was that rose between Jack Smith and Bartley Fallon, and it seems Jack made off, and Bartley is following him with a hayfork !

Mrs. Tarpey. Is he now ? Well, that was quick work ! It's not ten minutes since the two of them were here, Bartley going home and Jack going to the Five Acre Meadow ; and I had my apples to settle up, that Jo Muldoon of the police had scattered, and when I looked round again Jack Smith was gone, and Bartley Fallon was gone, and Mrs. Fallon's basket upset, and all in it strewed upon the ground—the tea here—the two pound of sugar there—the egg-cups there—Look, now, what a great hardship the deafness puts upon me, that I didn't hear the commencement of the fight ! Wait till I tell James Ryan that I see below, he is a neighbour of Bartley's, it would be a pity if he wouldn't hear the news !

(She goes out. Enter Shawn Early and Mrs. Tully.)

Tim Casey. Listen, Shawn Early ! Listen, Mrs. Tully, to the news ! Jack Smith and Bartley Fallon had a falling out, and Jack knocked Mrs. Fallon's basket into the road, and Bartley made an attack on him with a hayfork, and away with Jack, and Bartley after him. Look at the sugar here yet on the road!

Spreading the News 11

Shawn Early. Do you tell me so? Well, that's a queer thing, and Bartley Fallon so quiet a man!

Mrs. Tully. I wouldn't wonder at all. I would never think well of a man that would have that sort of a mouldering look. It's likely he has overtaken Jack by this.

(Enter James Ryan and Mrs. Tarpey.)

James Ryan. That is great news Mrs. Tarpey was telling me! I suppose that's what brought the police and the magistrate up this way. I was wondering to see them in it a while ago.

Shawn Early. The police after them? Bartley Fallon must have injured Jack so. They wouldn't meddle in a fight that was only for show!

Mrs. Tully. Why wouldn't he injure him? There was many a man killed with no more of a weapon than a hayfork.

James Ryan. Wait till I run north as far as Kelly's bar to spread the news! (He goes out.)

Tim Casey. I'll go tell Jack Smith's first cousin that is standing there south of the church after selling his lambs. (Goes out.)

Mrs. Tully. I'll go telling a few of the neighbours I see beyond to the west. (Goes out.)

Spreading the News

•Shawn Early. I'll give word of it beyond at the east of the green.

(Is going out when Mrs. Tarpey seizes hold of him.)

Mrs. Tarpey. Stop a minute, Shawn Early, and tell me did you see red Jack Smith's wife, Kitty Keary, in any place?

Shawn Early. I did. At her own house she was, drying clothes on the hedge as I passed.

Mrs. Tarpey. What did you say she was doing?

Shawn Early (breaking away). Laying out a sheet on the hedge. (He goes.)

Mrs. Tarpey. Laying out a sheet for the dead! The Lord have mercy on us! Jack Smith dead, and his wife laying out a sheet for his burying! (Calls out.) Why didn't you tell me that before, Shawn Early? Isn't the deafness the great hardship? Half the world might be dead without me knowing of it or getting word of it at all! (She sits down and rocks herself.) O my poor Jack Smith! To be going to his work so nice and so hearty, and to be left stretched on the ground in the full light of the day!

(Enter Tim Casey.)

Tim Casey. What is it, Mrs. Tarpey? What happened since?

Mrs. Tarpey. O my poor Jack Smith!

13

Tim Casey. Did Bartley overtake him

Mrs. Tarpey. O the poor man !

Tim Casey. Is it killed he is ?

Mrs. Tarpey. Stretched in the Five Acre Meadow !

Tim Casey. The Lord have mercy on us ! Is that a fact ?

Mrs. Tarpey. Without the rites of the Church or a ha'porth !

Tim Casey. Who was telling you ?

Mrs. Tarpey. And the wife laying out a sheet for his corpse. (Sits up and wipes her eyes.) I suppose they'll wake him the same as another ?

(Enter Mrs. Tully, Shawn Early, and James Ryan.)

Mrs. Tully. There is great talk about this work in every quarter of the fair.

Mrs. Tarpey. Ochone ! cold and dead. And myself maybe the last he was speaking to !

James Ryan. The Lord save us ! Is it dead he is ?

Tim Casey. Dead surely, and the wife getting provision for the wake.

Shawn Early. Well, now, hadn't Bartley Fallon great venom in him ?

Mrs. Tully. You may be sure he had some cause. Why would he have made an end of him if he had not ? (To Mrs. Tarpey, raising her voice.) What was it rose the dispute at all, Mrs. Tarpey?

Mrs. Tarpey. Not a one of me knows. The last I saw of them, Jack Smith was standing there, and Bartley Fallon was standing there, quiet and easy, and he listening to "The Red-haired Man's Wife."

Mrs. Tully. Do you hear that, Tim Casey? Do you hear that, Shawn Early and James Ryan? Bartley Fallon was here this morning listening to red Jack Smith's wife, Kitty Keary that was! Listening to her and whispering with her! It was she started the fight so!

Shawn Early. She must have followed him from her own house. It is likely some person roused him.

Tim Casey. I never knew, before, Bartley Fallon was great with Jack Smith's wife.

Mrs. Tully. How would you know it? Sure it's not in the streets they would be calling it. If Mrs. Fallon didn't know of it, and if I that have the next house to them didn't know of it, and if Jack Smith himself didn't know of it, it is not likely you would know of it, Tim Casey.

Shawn Early. Let Bartley Fallon take charge of her from this out so, and let him provide for her. 'It is little pity she will get from any person in this parish.

Tim Casey. How can he take charge of her? Sure he has a wife of his own. Sure you don't think he'd turn souper and marry her in a Protestant church?

James Ryan. It would be easy for him to marry her if he brought her to America.

Shawn Early. With or without Kitty Keary, believe me it is for America he's making at this minute. I saw the new magistrate and Jo Muldoon of the police going into the post-office as I came up—there was hurry on them—you may be sure it was to telegraph they went, the way he'll be stopped in the docks at Queenstown!

Mrs. Tully. It's likely Kitty Keary is gone with him, and not minding a sheet or a wake at all. The poor man, to be deserted by his own wife, and the breath hardly gone out yet from his body that is lying bloody in the field!

(Enter Mrs. Fallon.

Mrs. Fallon. What is it the whole of the town is talking about? And what is it you yourselves are talking about? Is it about my man Bartley Fallon you are talking? Is it lies about him you are telling, saying that he went killing Jack Smith? My grief that ever he came into this place at all!

James Ryan. Be easy now, Mrs. Fallon.

Sure there is no one at all in the whole fair but is sorry for you !

Mrs. Fallon. Sorry for me, is it ? Why would anyone be sorry for me ? Let you be sorry for yourselves, and that there may be shame on you for ever and at the day of judgment, for the words you are saying and the lies you are telling to take away the character of my poor man, and to take the good name off of him, and to drive him to destruction ! That is what you are doing !

Shawn Early. Take comfort now, Mrs. Fallon. The police are not so smart as they think. Sure he might give them the slip yet, the same as Lynchehaun.

Mrs. Tully. If they do get him, and if they do put a rope around his neck, there is no one can say he does not deserve it !

Mrs. Fallon. Is that what you are saying, Bridget Tully, and is that what you think ? I tell you it's too much talk you have, making yourself out to be such a great one, and to be running down every respectable person ! A rope, is it ? It isn't much of a rope was needed to tie up your own furniture the day you came into Martin Tully's house, and you never bringing as much as a blanket, or a penny. or a suit of clothes with you, and I myself bringing seventy pounds and two feather beds. And now you are stiffer than a woman would have a hundred pounds! It is too much talk the whole of you have. A rope, is it? I tell you the whole of this town is full of liars and schemers that would hang you up for half a glass of whiskey! (Turning to go.) People they are you wouldn't believe as much as daylight from without you'd get up to have a look at it yourself. Killing Jack Smith indeed! Where are you at all, Bartley, till I bring you out of this? My nice, quiet little man! My decent comrade! He that is as kind and as harmless as an innocent beast of the field! He'll be doing no harm at all if he'll shed the blood of some of you after this day's work! That much would be no harm at all. (Calls out.) Bartley! Bartley Fallon! Where are you? (Going out.) Did anyone see Bartley Fallon?

[All turn to look after her.]

James Ryan. It is hard for her to believe any such a thing, God help her!

(Enter Bartley Fallon from right, carrying a hayfork.)

Bartley. It is what I often said to myself, if there is ever any misfortune coming to this world, it is on myself it is sure to come!

(All turn round and face him.)

•• Bartley. To be going about with this fork, and to find no one to take it, and no place to leave it down, and I wanting to be gone out of this.—Is that you, Shawn Early? (Holds out fork.) It's well I met you. You have no call to be leaving the fair for a while the way I have, and how can I go till I'm rid of this fork? Will you take it and keep it until such time as Jack Smith——

Shawn Early (backing). I will 'not take it, Bartley Fallon, I'm very thankful to you!

Bartley (turning to apple stall). Look at it now Mrs. Tarpey, it was here I got it; let me thrust it in under the stall. It will lie there safe enough, and no one will take notice of it until such time as Jack Smith——

Mrs. Tarpey. Take your fork out of that! Is it to put trouble on me and to destroy me you want? putting it there for the police to be rooting it out maybe. (Thrusts him back.)

Bartley. That is a very unneighbourly thing for you to do, Mrs. Tarpey. Hadn't I enough care on me with that fork before this, running up and down with it like the swinging of a clock, and afeard to lay it down in any place I wish I never touched it or meddled with it at all!

James Ryan. It is a pity, indeed, you ever did.

Spreading the News 19

Bartley. Will you yourself take it, James Ryan? You were always a neighbourly man.

James Ryan (backing). There is many a thing I would do for you, Bartley Fallon, but I won't do that!

Shawn Early. I tell you there is no man will give you any help or any encouragement for this day's work. If it was something agrarian now——

Bartley. If no one at all will take it, maybe it's best to give it up to the police.

Tim Casey. There'd be a welcome for it with them, surely! (Laughter).

Mrs. Tully. And it is to the police Kitty Keary herself will be brought.

Mrs. Tarpey (rocking to and fro). I wonder now who will take the expense of the wake for poor Jack Smith?

Bartley. The wake for Jack Smith!

Tim Casey. Why wouldn't he get a wake as well as another? Would you begrudge him that much?

Bartley. Red Jack Smith dead! Who was telling you?

Shawn Early. The whole town knows of it by this.

Bartley. Do they say what way did he die?

20. Spreading the News

James Ryan. You don't know that yourself, I suppose, Bartley Fallon? You don't know he was followed and that he was laid dead with the stab of a hayfork?

Bartley. The stab of a hayfork!

Shawn Early. You don't know, I suppose, that the body was found in the Five Acre Meadow?

Bartley. The Five Acre Meadow?

Tim Casey. It is likely you don't know that the police are after the man that did it?

Bartley. The man that did it!

Mrs. Tully. You don't know, maybe, that he was made away with for the sake of Kitty Keary, his wife?

Bartley. Kitty Keary, his wife!

(Sits down bewildered.)

Mrs. Tully. And what have you to say now, Bartley Fallon?

Bartley (crossing himself). I to bring that fork here, and to find that news before me! It is much if I can ever stir from this place at all, or reach as far as the road!

Tim Casey. Look, boys, at the new magistrate, and Jo Muldoon along with him! It's best for us to quit this.

Shawn Early. That is so. It is best not to be mixed in this business at all.

Spreading the News 21

James Ryan. Bad as he is, I wouldn't like to be an informer against any man.

(All hurry away except Mrs. Tarpey, who remains behind her stall. Enter magistrate and policeman.)

Magistrate. I knew the district was in a bad state, but I did not expect to be confronted with a murder at the first fair I came to.

Policeman. I am sure you did not, indeed.

Magistrate. It was well I had not gone home. I caught a few words here and there that roused my suspicions.

Policeman. So they would, too.

Magistrate. You heard the same story from everyone you asked ?

Policeman. The same story—or if it was not altogether the same, anyway it was no less than the first story.

Magistrate. What is that man doing ? He is sitting alone with a hayfork. He has a guilty look. The murder was done with a hayfork !

Policeman (in a whisper). That's the very man they say did the act ; Bartley Fallon himself !

Magistrate. He must have found escape difficult—he is trying to brazen it out. A convict in the Andaman Islands tried the same game, but he could not escape my system !

Spreading the News

Stand aside—— Don't go far——have the handcuffs ready. (He walks up to Bartley, folds his arms, and stands before him). Here, my man, do you know anything of John Smith ?

Bartley. Of John Smith ! Who is he, now ?

Policeman. Jack Smith, sir——Red Jack Smith !

Magistrate (coming a step nearer and tapping him on the shoulder). Where is Jack Smith ?

Bartley (with a deep sigh, and shaking his head slowly). Where is he, indeed ? •

Magistrate. What have you to tell ?

Bartley. It is where he was this morning, standing in this spot, singing his share of songs—no, but lighting his pipe—scraping a match on the sole of his shoe——

Magistrate. I ask you, for the third time, where is he ?

Bartley. I wouldn't like to say that. It is a great mystery, and it is hard to say of any man, did he earn hatred or love.

Magistrate. Tell me all you know.

Bartley. All that I know—— Well, there are the three estates ; there is Limbo, and there is Purgatory, and there is——

Magistrate. Nonsense ! This is trifling ! Get to the point.

Bartley. Maybe you don't hold with the clergy so? That is the teaching of the clergy. Maybe you hold with the old people. It is what they do be saying, that the shadow goes wandering, and the soul is tired, and the body is taking a rest—— The shadow! (startle) I was nearly sure I saw Jack Smith not ten minutes ago at the corner of the forge, and I lost him again—— Was it his ghost I saw, do you think?

Magistrate (to policeman). Conscience-struck! He will confess all now!

Bartley. His ghost to come before me! It is likely it was on account of the fork! I to have it and he to have no way to defend himself the time he met with his death!

Magistrate (to policeman). I must note down his words (takes out notebook). (To Bartley.) I warn you that your words are being noted.

Bartley. If I had ha' run faster in the beginning, this terror would not be on me at the latter end! Maybe he will cast it up against me at the day of judgment—— I wouldn't wonder at all at that.

Magistrate (writing). At the day of judgment——

Bartley. It was soon for his ghost to appear to me——is it coming after me always by day it will be, and stripping the clothes off in the night time?— I wouldn't wonder at all at that, being as I am an unfortunate man!

Spreading the News

Magistrate (sternly). Tell me this truly. What was the motive of this crime?

Bartley. The motive, is it?

Magistrate. Yes; the motive; the cause.

Bartley. I'd sooner not say that.

Magistrate. You had better tell me truly. Was it money?

Bartley. Not at all! What did poor Jack Smith ever have in his pockets unless it might be his hands that would be in them?

Magistrate. Any dispute about land?

Bartley (indignantly). Not at all! He never was a grabber or grabbed from anyone!

Magistrate. You will find it better for you if you tell me at once.

Bartley. I tell you I wouldn't for the whole world wish to say what it was—it is a thing I would not like to be talking about.

Magistrate. There is no use in hiding it. It will be discovered in the end.

Bartley. Well, I suppose it will, seeing that mostly everybody knows it before. Whisper here now. I will tell no lie; where would be the use? (Puts his hand to his mouth, and Magistrate stoops.) Don't be putting the blame on the parish, for such a thing was never done in the parish before—it was done for the sake of Kitty Keary, Jack Smith's wife.

• Magistrate (to policeman). Put on the handcuffs. We have been saved some trouble. I knew he would confess if taken in the right way.

(Policeman puts on handcuffs.)

Bartley. Handcuffs now! Glory be! I always said, if there was ever any misfortune coming to this place it was on myself it would fall. I to be in handcuffs! There's no wonder at all in that.

(Enter Mrs. Fallon, followed by the rest.)

She is looking back at them as she speaks.

Mrs. Fallon. Telling lies the whole of the people of this town are; telling lies, telling lies as fast as a dog will trot! Speaking against my poor respectable man! Saying he made an end of Jack Smith! My decent comrade! There is no better man and no kinder man in the whole of the five parishes! It's little annoyance he ever gave to anyone! (Turns and sees him.) What in the earthly world do I see before me? Bartley Fallon in charge of the police! Handcuffs on him! O Bartley, what did you do at all at all?

Bartley. O Mary, there has a great misfortune come upon me ! It is what I always said, that if there is ever any misfortune——

26 Spreading the News

Mrs. Fallon. What did he do at all, or is it bewitched I am ?

Magistrate. This man has been arrested on a charge of murder.

Mrs. Fallon. Whose charge is that ? Don't believe them ! They are all liars in this place ! Give me back my man !

Magistrate. It is natural you should take his part, but you have no cause of complaint against your neighbours. He has been arrested for the murder of John Smith, on his own confession.

Mrs. Fallon. The saints of heaven protect us ! And what did he want killing Jack Smith ?

Magistrate. It is best you should know all. He did it on account of a love affair with the murdered man's wife.

Mrs. Fallon (sitting down). With Jack Smith's wife ! With Kitty Keary !——Ochone, the traitor !

The Crowd. A great shame, indeed. He is a traitor, indeed.

Mrs. Tully. To America he was bringing her, Mrs. Fallon.

Bartley. What are you saying, Mary ? I tell you——

Spreading the News

Mrs. Fallon. Don't say a word! I won't listen to any word you'll say! (Stops her ears.) O, isn't he the treacherous villain? Ohone go deo!

Bartley. Be quiet till I speak! Listen to what I say!

Mrs. Fallon. Sitting beside me on the ass car coming to the town, so quiet and so respectable, and treachery like that in his heart!

Bartley. Is it your wits you have lost or is it I myself that have lost my wits?

Mrs. Fallon. And it's hard I earned you, slaving, slaving—and you grumbling, and sighing, and coughing, and discontented, and the priest wore out anointing you, with all the times you threatened to die!

Bartley. Let you be quiet till I tell you!

Mrs. Fallon. You to bring such a disgrace into the parish! A thing that was never heard of before!

Bartley. Will you shut your mouth and hear me speaking?

Mrs. Fallon. And if it was for any sort of a fine handsome woman, but for a little fistful of a woman like Kitty Keary, that's not four feet high hardly, and not three teeth in her head unless she got new ones! May God reward you, Bartley Fallon, for the black treachery in your heart and the wickedness in your mind, and the red blood of poor Jack Smith that is wet upon your hand !

(Voice of Jack Smith heard singing.)

The sea shall be dry,

The earth under mourning and ban !

Then loud shall he cry

For the wife of the red-haired man !

Bartley. It's Jack Smith's voice—I never knew a ghost to sing before—. 'It is after myself and the fork he is coming ! (Goes back. Enter Jack Smith.) Let one of you give him the fork and I will be clear of him now and for eternity !

Mrs. Tarpey. The Lord have mercy on us Red Jack Smith ! The man that was going to be waked !

James Ryan. Is it back from the grave you are come ?

Shawn Early. Is it alive you are, or is it dead you are ?

Tim Casey. Is it yourself at all that's in it ?

Mrs. Tully. Is it letting on you were to be dead ?

Mrs. Fallon. Dead or alive, let you stop Kitty Keary, your wife, from bringing my man away with her to America !

Jack Smith. It is what I think, the wits are Spreading gone astray on the whole or my wife want bringing Bar America ?

Mrs. Fallon. To leave yourself, and to get quit of you she wants, Jack Smith, and to bring him away from myself. That's what the two of them had settled together.

Jack Smith. I'll break the head of any man that says that ! Who is it says it ? (To Tim Casey.) Was it you said it ? (To Shawn Early.) Was it you ?

All together (backing and shaking their heads).
It wasn't I said it !

Jack Smith. Tell me the name of any man that said it !

All together (pointing to Bartley). It was him that said it !

Jack Smith. Let me at him till I break his head !

(Bartley backs in terror. Neighbours hold Jack Smith back.)

Jack Smith (trying to free himself). Let me at him ! Isn't he the pleasant sort of a scarecrow for any woman to be crossing the ocean with ! It's back from the docks of New York he'd be turned (trying to rush at him again), with a lie in his mouth and treachery in his heart, and another man's wife by his side, and he

News

his own ! Let me at him

(makes another rush, but is held back.)

Magistrate (pointing to Jack Smith). Policeman, put the handcuffs on this man. I see it all now. A case of false impersonation, a conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice. There was a case in the Andaman Islands, a murderer of the Mopsa tribe, a religious enthusiast——

Policeman. So he might be, too.

Magistrate. We must take both these men to the scene of the murder. We must confront them with the body of the real Jack Smith.

Jack Smith. I'll break the head of any man that will find my dead body !

Magistrate. I'll call more help from the barracks. (Blows Policeman's whistle.)

Bartley. It is what I am thinking, if myself and Jack Smith are put together in the one cell for the night, the handcuffs will be taken off him, and his hands will be free, and murder will be done that time surely !

Magistrate. Come on ! (They turn to the right.)

HYACINTH HALVEY

PERSONS

HYACINTH HALVEY. SERGEANT CARDEN.

JAMES QUIRKE, a butcher. MRS. DELANE, Postmistress at Cloon.

FARDY FARRELL, a tele- MISS JOYCE, the Priest's graph boy. House-keeper.

HYACINTH HALVEY

SCENE: Outside the Post Office at the little town of Cloon. Mrs. Delane at Post Office door. Mr. Quirke sitting on a chair at butcher's door. A dead sheep hanging beside it, and a thrush in a cage above. Fardy Farrell playing on a mouth organ. Train whistle heard.

Mrs. Delane. There is the four o'clock train, Mr. Quirke.

Mr. Quirke. Is it now, Mrs. Delane, and I not long after rising? It makes a man drowsy to be doing the half of his work in the night time. Going about the country, looking for little stags of sheep, striving to knock a few shillings together. That contract for the soldiers gives me a great deal to attend to.

Mrs. Delane. I suppose so. It's hard enough on myself to be down ready for the mail car in the morning, sorting letters in the half dark. It's often I haven't time to look who are the letters from—or the cards.

Mr. Quirke. It would be a pity you not to know any little news might be knocking about. If you did not have information of what is going on who should have it? Was it you, ma'am, was telling me that the new Sub-Sanitary Inspector would be arriving to-day?

Mrs. Delane. To-day it is he is coming, and it's likely he was in that train. There was a card about him to Sergeant Carden this morning.

Mr. Quirke. A young chap from Carrow they were saying he was.

Mrs. Delane. So he is, one Hyacinth Halvey; and indeed if all that is said of him is true, or if a quarter of it is true, he will be a credit to this town.

Mr. Quirke. Is that so?

Mrs. Delane. Testimonials he has by the score. To Father Grogan they were sent. Registered they were coming and going. Would you believe me telling you that they weighed up to three pounds?

Mr. Quirke. There must be great bulk in them indeed.

Mrs. Delane. It is no wonder he to get the job. He must have a great character so many persons to write for him as what there did.

Fardy. It would be a great thing to have a character like that.

Mrs. Delane. Indeed I am thinking it will be long before you will get the like of it, Fardy Farrell.

Fardy. If I had the like of that of a character it is not here carrying messages I would be. It's in Noonan's Hotel I would be, driving cars.

Mr. Quirke. Here is the priest's housekeeper coming.

Mrs. Delane. So she is; and there is the Sergeant a little while after her.

(Enter Miss Joyce.)

Mrs. Delane. Good evening to you, Miss Joyce. What way is his Reverence to-day? Did he get any ease from the cough?

Miss Joyce. He did not indeed, Mrs. Delane. He has it sticking to him yet. Smothering he is in the night time. The most thing he comes short in is the voice.

Mrs. Delane. I am sorry, now, to hear that. He should mind himself well.

Miss Joyce. It's easy to say let him mind himself. What do you say to him going to the meeting to-night? (Sergeant comes in.) It's for his Reverence's Freeman I am come, Mrs. Delane.

Mrs. Delane. Here it is ready. I was just throwing an eye on it to see was there any news. Good evening, Sergeant.

Sergeant (holding up a placard). I brought this notice, Mrs. Delane, the announcement of the meeting to be held to-night in the Courthouse. You might put it up here convenient to the window. I hope you are coming to it yourself?

Mrs. Delane. I will come, and welcome. I would do more than that for you, Sergeant.

Sergeant. And you, Mr. Quirke.

Mr. Quirke. I'll come, to be sure. I forget what's this the meeting is about.

Sergeant. The Department of Agriculture is sending round a lecturer in furtherance of the moral development of the rural classes. (Reads.) "A lecture will be given this evening in Cloon Courthouse, illustrated by magic lantern slides——" Those will not be in it; I am informed they were all broken in the first journey, the railway company taking them to be eggs. The subject of the lecture is "The Building of Character."

Mrs. Delane. Very nice, indeed. I knew a girl lost her character, and she washed her feet in a blessed well after, and it dried up on the minute.

Sergeant. The arrangements have all been left to me, the Archdeacon being away. He knows I have a good intellect for things of the sort. But the loss of those slides puts a man out.

The thing people will not see it is not likely it is the thing they will believe. I saw what they call tableaux—standing pictures, you know—one time in Dundrum——

Mrs. Delane. Miss Joyce was saying Father Gregan is supporting you.

Sergeant. I am accepting his assistance. No bigotry about me when there is a question of the welfare of any fellow-creatures. Orange and green will stand together to-night. I myself and the station-master on the one side ; your parish priest in the chair.

Miss Joyce. If his Reverence would mind me he would not quit the house to-night. He is no more fit to go speak at a meeting than (pointing to the one hanging outside Quirke's door) that sheep.

Sergeant. I am willing to take the responsibility. He will have no speaking to do at all, unless it might be to bid them give the lecturer a hearing. The loss of those slides now is a great annoyance to me—and no time for anything. The lecturer will be coming by the next train.

Miss Joyce. Who is this coming up the street, Mrs. Delane ?

Mrs. Delane. I wouldn't doubt it to be the new Sub-Sanitary Inspector. Was I telling you of the weight of the testimonials he got, Miss Joyce?

Miss Joyce. Sure I heard the curate reading them to his Reverence. He must be a wonder for principles.

Mrs. Delane. Indeed it is what I was saying to myself, he must be a very saintly young man.

(Enter Hyacinth Halvey. He carries a small bag and a large brown paper parcel. He stops and neds bashfully.)

Hyacinth. Good evening to you. I was bid to come to the post office——

Sergeant. I suppose you are Hyacinth Halvey? I had a letter about you from the Resident Magistrate.

Hyacinth. I heard he was writing. It was my mother got a friend he deals with to ask him.

Sergeant. He gives you a very high character.

Hyacinth. It is very kind of him indeed, and he not knowing me at all. But indeed all the neighbours were very friendly. Anything anyone could do to help me they did it.

Mrs. Delane. I'll engage it is the testimonials you have in your parcel? I know the wrapping paper, but they grew in bulk since I handled them.

Hyacinth. Indeed I was getting them to the last. There was not one refused me. It is what my mother was saying, a good character is no burden.

Fardy. I would believe that indeed.

Sergeant. Let us have a look at the testimonials. (Hyacinth Halvey opens parcel, and large number of envelopes fall out.)

Sergeant. (Opening and reading one by one.)
“He possesses the fire of the Gael, the strength of the Norman, the vigour of the Dane, the stolidity of the Saxon.”——

• Hyacinth. It was the Chairman of the Poor Law Guardians wrote that.

Sergeant. “A magnificent example to old and young.”——

Hyacinth. That was the Secretary of the De Wet Hurling Club——

Sergeant. “A shining example of the value conferred by an eminently careful and high class education.”——

Hyacinth. That was the National School-master.

Sergeant. “Devoted to the highest ideals of his Mother-land to such an extent as is compatible with a hitherto non-parliamentary career.”——

Hyacinth. That was the Member for Carrow.

Sergeant. “A splendid exponent of the purity of the race.”——

Hyacinth. The Editor of the Carrow Champion.

Sergeant. "Admirably adapted for the efficient discharge of all possible duties that may in future be laid upon him"—

Hyacinth. The new Station-master.

Sergeant. "A champion of every cause that can legitimately benefit his fellow-creatures"—Why, look here, my man, you are the very one to come to our assistance to-night.

Hyacinth. I would be glad to do that. What way can I do it?

Sergeant. You are a new comer—your example would carry weight—you must stand up as a living proof of the beneficial effect of a high character, moral fibre, temperance—there is something about it here I am sure—(Looks.) I am sure I saw "unparalleled temperance" in some place—

Hyacinth. It was my mother's cousin wrote that—I am no drinker, but I haven't the pledge taken—

Sergeant. You might take it for the purpose.

Mr. Quirke (eagerly). Here is an anti-treating button. I was made a present of it by one of my customers—I'll give it to you (sticks it in Hyacinth's coat) and welcome.

Sergeant. That is it. You can wear the button on the platform—or a bit of blue ribbon—hundreds will follow your example—I know the boys from the Workhouse will—

Hyacinth. I am in no way wishful to be an example—

Sergeant. I will read extracts from the testimonials. “There he is,” I will say, “an example of one in early life who by his own unaided efforts and his high character has obtained a profitable situation—(Slaps his side). I know what I’ll do. I’ll engage a few corner-boys from Noonan’s bar, just as they are, greasy and sodden, to stand in a group—there will be the contrast—The sight will deter others from a similar fate—That’s the way to do a tableau—I knew I could turn out a success.

Hyacinth. I wouldn’t like to be a contrast—

Sergeant (puts testimonials in his pocket). I will go now and engage those lads—sixpence each, and well worth it—Nothing like an example for the rural classes.

(Goes off, Hyacinth feebly trying to detain him.)

Mrs. Delane. A very nice man indeed. A little high up in himself, may be. I’m not one that blames the police. Sure they have their own bread to earn like every other one. And indeed it is often they will let a thing pass.

Mr. Quirke (gloomily). Sometimes they will, and more times they will not.

Miss Joyce. And where will you be finding a lodging, Mr. Halvey ?

Hyacinth. I was going to ask that myself, ma'am. I don't know the town.

Miss Joyce. I know of a good lodging, but it is only a very good man would be taken into it.

Mrs. Delane. Sure there could be no objection there to Mr. Halvey. There is no appearance on him but what is good, and the Sergeant after taking him up the way he is doing.

Miss Joyce. You will be near to the Sergeant in the lodging I speak of. The house is convenient to the barracks.

Hyacinth (doubtfully). To the barracks ?

Miss Joyce. Alongside of it and the barrack yard behind. And that's not all. It is opposite to the priest's house.

Hyacinth. Opposite, is it ?

Miss Joyce. A very respectable place, indeed, and a very clean room you will get. I know it well. The curate can see into it from his window.

Hyacinth. Can he now ?

Fardy. There was a good many, I am thinking, went into that lodging and left it after.

Miss Joyce (sharply). It is a lodging you will never be let into or let stop in, Fardy. If they did go they were a good riddance.

Fardy. John Hart, the plumber, left it——

Miss Joyce. If he did it was because he dared not pass the police coming in, as he used, with a rabbit he was after snaring in his hand.

Fardy. The schoolmaster himself left it.

• Miss Joyce. He needn't have left it if he hadn't taken to cardplaying. What way could you say your prayers, and shadows shuffling and dealing before you on the blind?

Hyacinth. I think maybe I'd best look around a bit before I'll settle in a lodging——

Miss Joyce. Not at all. You won't be wanting to pull down the blind.

Mrs. Delane. It is not likely you will be snaring rabbits.

Miss Joyce. Or bringing in a bottle and taking an odd glass the way James Kelly did.

Mrs. Delane. Or writing threatening notices, and the police taking a view of you from the rear.

Miss Joyce. Or going to roadside dances, or running after good-for-nothing young girls——

Hyacinth. I give you my word I'm not so harmless as you think.

Hyacinth Halvey

Mrs. Delane. Would you be putting a lie on these Mr. Halvey? (Touching testimonials.) I know well the way you will be spending the evenings, writing letters to your relations——

Miss Joyce. Learning O'Growney's exercises——

Mrs. Delane. Sticking post cards in an album for the convent bazaar.

Miss Joyce. Reading the "Catholic Young Man"——

Mrs. Delane. Playing the melodies on melodeon——

Miss Joyce. Looking at the pictures in the "Lives of the Saints." I'll hurry on and engage the room for you.

Hyacinth. Wait. Wait a minute——

Miss Joyce. No trouble at all. I told you it was just opposite. (Goes.)

Mr. Quirke. I suppose I must go up stairs and ready myself for the meeting. If it wasn' for the contract I have for the soldiers' barracks and the Sergeant's good word, I wouldn't go anear it. (Goes into shop.)

Mrs. Delane. I should be making myself ready too. I must be in good time to see you being made an example of, Mr. Halvey. It is I myself was the first to say it; you will be a credit to the town. (Goes.)

Hyacinth Halvey . 45

Hyacinth (in a tone of agony). I wish I had never seen Cloon.

Fardy. What is on you ?

Hyacinth. I wish I had never left Carrow. I wish I had been drowned the first day I thought of it, and I'd be better off.

Fardy. What is it ails you ?

Hyacinth. I wouldn't for the best pound ever I had be in this place to-day.

Fardy. I don't know what you are talking about.

Hyacinth. To have left Carrow, if it was a poor place, where I had my comrades, and an odd spree, and a game of cards—and a coursing match coming on, and I promised a new greyhound from the city of Cork. I'll die in this place, the way I am. I'll be too much closed in.

Fardy. Sure it mightn't be as bad as what you think.

Hyacinth. Will you tell me, I ask you, what way can I undo it ?

Fardy. What is it you are wanting to undo ?

Hyacinth. Will you tell me what way can I get rid of my character ?

Fardy. To get rid of it, is it ?

Hyacinth. That is what I said. Aren't you after hearing the great character they are after putting on me ?

Fardy. That is a good thing to have.

Hyacinth. It is not. It's the worst in the world. If I hadn't it, I wouldn't be like a prize mangold at a show with every person praising me.

Fardy. If I had it, I wouldn't be like a head in a barrel, with every person making hits at me.

Hyacinth. If I hadn't it, I wouldn't be shoved into a room with all the clergy watching me and the police in the back yard.

Fardy. If I had it, I wouldn't be but a message-carrier now, and a clapper scaring birds in the summer time.

Hyacinth. If I hadn't it, I wouldn't be wearing this button and brought up for an example at the meeting.

Fardy (whistles). Maybe you're not, so, what those papers make you out to be ?

Hyacinth. How would I be what they make me out to be ? Was there ever any person of that sort since the world was a world, unless it might be Saint Antony of Padua looking down from the chapel wall ? If it is like that I was, isn't it in Mount Melleray I would be, or with the Friars at Esker ? Why would I be living in the world at all, or doing the world's work ?

Fardy (taking up parcel). Who would think, now, there would be so much lies in a small place like Canrow ?

Hyacinth. It was my mother's cousin did it. He said I was not reared for labouring—he gave me a new suit and bid me never to come back again. I daren't go back to face him—the neighbours knew my mother had a long family—bad luck to them the day they gave me these. (Tears letters and scatters them.) I'm done with testimonials. They won't be here to bear witness against me.

Fardy. The Sergeant thought them to be great. Sure he has the samples of them in his pocket. There's not one in the town but will know before morning that you are the next thing to an earthly saint.

Hyacinth (stamping). I'll stop their mouths. I'll show them I can be a terror for badness. I'll do some injury. I'll commit some crime. The first thing I'll do I'll go and get drunk. If I never did it before I'll do it now. I'll get drunk—then I'll make an assault—I tell you I'd think as little of taking a life as of blowing out a candle Fardy. If you get drunk you are done for. Sure that will be held up after as an excuse for any breaking of the law.

Hyacinth. I will break the law. Drunk or sober I'll break it. I'll do something that will have no excuse. What would you say is the worst crime that any man can do?

Fardy. I don't know. I heard the Sergeant saying one time it was to obstruct the police in the discharge of their duty——

Hyacinth. That won't do. It's a patriot I would be then, worse than before, with my picture in the weeklies. It's a red crime I must commit that will make all respectable people quit minding me. What can I do? Search your mind now.

Fardy. It's what I heard the old people saying there could be no worse crime than to steal a sheep——

Hyacinth. I'll steal a sheep——or a cow——or a horse——if that will leave me the way I was before.

Fardy. It's maybe in gaol it will leave you.

Hyacinth. I don't care——I'll confess——I'll tell why I did it——I give you my word I would as soon be picking oakum or breaking stones as to be perched in the daylight the same as that bird, and all the town chirruping to me or bidding me chirrup——

Fardy. There is reason in that, now.

Hyacinth. Help me, will you?

Fardy. Well, if it is to steal a sheep you want, you haven't far to go.

Hyacinth Halvey

Hyacinth (looking round wildly). Where is it ?
I see no sheep.

Fardy. Look around you.

Hyacinth. I see no living thing but that thrush——

Fardy. Did I say it was living ? What is that hanging on Quirke's rack ?

Hyacinth. It's (fingers it) a sheep, sure enough——

Fardy. Well, what ails you that you can't bring it away ?

Hyacinth. It's a dead one——

Fardy. What matter if it is ?

Hyacinth. If it was living I could drive it before me——

Fardy. You could. Is it to your own lodging you would drive it ? Sure everyone would take it to be a pet you brought from Carrow.

Hyacinth. I suppose they might.

Fardy. Miss Joyce sending in for news of it and it bleating behind the bed.

Hyacinth (distracted). Stop ! stop !

Mrs. Delane (from upper window). Fardy ! Are you there, Fardy Farrell ?

Fardy. I am, ma'am.

Mrs. Delane (from window). Look and tell me is that the telegraph I hear ticking ?

Hyacinth Halvey

Fardy (looking in at door). 'It is, ma'am.

Mrs. Delane. Then botheration to it, and I not dressed or undressed. Wouldn't you say, now, it's to annoy me it is calling me down. I'm coming! I'm coming! (Disappears.)

Fardy. Hurry on, now! hurry! She'll be coming out on you. If you are going to do it, do it, and if you are not, let it alone.

Hyacinth. I'll do it! I'll do it.

Fardy (lifting the sheep on his back). I'll give you a hand with it.

Hyacinth (goes a step or two and turns round). You told me no place where I could hide it.

Fardy. You needn't go far. There is the church beyond at the side of the Square. Go round to the ditch behind the wall—there's nettles in it.

Hyacinth. That'll do.

Fardy. She's coming out—run! run!

Hyacinth (runs a step or two). It's slipping!

Fardy. Hoist it up! I'll give it a hoist! (Halvey runs out.)

Mrs. Delane (calling out). What are you doing, Fardy Farrell? Is it idling you are?

Fardy. Waiting I am, ma'am, for the message—

Mrs. Delane. Never mind the message yet. Who said it was ready? (Going to door.) Go ask for the loan of——no, but ask news of—— Here, now, go bring that bag of Mr. Halvey's to the lodging Miss Joyce has taken——

Fardy. I will, ma'am. (Takes bag and goes out.)

Mrs. Delane (coming out with a telegram in her hand). Nobody here? (Looks round and calls cautiously.) Mr. Quirke! Mr. Quirke! James Quirke!

Mr. Quirke (looking out of his upper window with soap-suddy face). What is it, Mrs. Delane?

Mrs. Delane (beckoning). Come down here till I tell you.

Mr. Quirke. I cannot do that. I'm not fully shaved.

Mrs. Delane. You'd come if you knew the news I have.

Mr. Quirke. Tell it to me now. I'm not so supple as I was.

Mrs. Delane. Whisper now, have you an enemy in any place?

Mr. Quirke. It's likely I may have. A man in business——

Mrs. Delane. I was thinking you had one.

Mr. Quirke. Why would you think that at this time more than any other time?

Mrs. Delane. If you could know what is in this envelope you would know that, James Quirke.

Hyacinth Halvey

Mr. Quirke. Is that so ? And what, now, is there in it ?

Mrs. Delane. Who do you think now is it addressed to ?

Mr. Quirke. How would I know that, and I not seeing it ?

Mrs. Delane. That is true. Well, it is a message from Dublin Castle to the Sergeant of Police !

Mr. Quirke. To Sergeant Carden, is it ?

Mrs. Delane. It is. 'And it concerns yourself.

Mr. Quirke. Myself, is it ? What accusation can they be bringing against me ? I'm a peaceable man.

Mrs. Delane. Wait till you hear.

Mr. Quirke. Maybe they think I was in that moonlighting case——

Mrs. Delane. That is not it——

Mr. Quirke. I was not in it—I was but in the neighbouring field—cutting up a dead cow, that those never had a hand in——

Mrs. Delane. You're out of it——

Mr. Quirke. They had their faces blackened. There is no man can say I recognised them.

Mrs. Delane. That's not what they're saying——

Mr. Quirke. I'll swear I did not hear their voices or know them if I did hear them.

Mrs. Delane. I tell you it has nothing to do with that. It might be better for you if it had.

Mr. Quirke. What is it, so ?

Mrs. Delane. It is an order to the Sergeant bidding him immediately to seize all suspicious meat in your house. There is an officer coming down. There are complaints from the Shannon Fort Barracks.

Mr. Quirke. I'll engage it was that pork.

Mrs. Delane. What ailed it for them to find fault ?

Mr. Quirke. People are so hard to please nowadays, and I recommended them to salt it.

Mrs. Delane. They had a right to have minded your advice.

Mr. Quirke. There was nothing on that pig at all but that it went mad on poor O'Grady that owned it.

Mrs. Delane. So I heard, and went killing all before it.

Mr. Quirke. Sure it's only in the brain madness can be. I heard the doctor saying that.

Mrs. Delane. He should know.

Mr. Quirke. I give you my word I cut the head off it. I went to the loss of it, throwing it to the eels in the river. If they had salted the meat, as I advised them, what harm would it have done to any person on earth ?

Hyacinth Halvey

• Mrs. Delane. I hope no harm will come on poor Mrs. Quirke and the family.

Mr. Quirke. Maybe it wasn't that but some other thing——

Mrs. Delane. Here is Fardy. I must send the message to the Sergeant. Well, Mr. Quirke, I'm glad I had the time to give you a warning.

Mr. Quirke. I'm obliged to you, indeed. You were always very neighbourly, Mrs. Delane. Don't be too quick now sending the message. There is just one article I would like to put away out of the house before the Sergeant will come. (Enter Fardy.)

Mrs. Delane. Here now, Fardy—that's not the way you're going to the barracks. Anyone would think you were scaring birds yet. Put on your uniform. (Fardy goes into office.) You have this message to bring to the Sergeant of Police. Get your cap now, it's under the counter.

(Fardy reappears, and she gives him telegram.)

Fardy. I'll bring it to the station. It's there he was going.

Mrs. Delane. You will not, but to the barracks. It can wait for him there.

• (Fardy goes off. Mr. Quirke has appeared at door.)

Mr. Quirke. It was indeed a very neighbourly act, Mrs. Delane, and I'm obliged to you. There is just one article to put out of the way. The Sergeant may look about him then and welcome. It's well I cleared the premises on yesterday. A consignment to Birmingham I sent. The Lord be praised isn't England a terrible country with all it consumes ?

Mrs. Delane. Indeed you always treat the neighbours very decent, Mr. Quirke, not asking them to buy from you.

Mr. Quirke. Just one article (turns to rack). That sheep I brought in last night. It was for a charity indeed I bought it from the widow woman at Kiltartan Cross. Where would the poor make a profit out of their dead meat without me ? Where now is it ? Well, now, I could have sworn that that sheep was hanging there on the rack when I went in——

Mrs. Delane. You must have put it in some other place.

Mr. Quirke (going in and searching and coming out). I did not ; there is no other place for me to put it. Is it gone blind I am, or is it not in it it is ?

Mrs. Delane. It's not there now anyway.

Mr. Quirke. Didn't you take notice of it there yourself this morning ?

Mrs. Delane. I have it in my mind that I did ; but it's not there now.

Mr. Quirke. There was no one here could bring it away ?

Mrs. Delane. Is it me myself you suspect of taking it, James Quirke ?

Mr. Quirke. Where is it at all ? It is certain it was not of itself it walked away. It was dead, and very dead, the time I bought it.

Mrs. Delane. I have a pleasant neighbour indeed that accuses me that I took his sheep. I wonder, indeed, you to say a thing like that ! I to steal your sheep or your rack or anything that belongs to you or to your trade ! Thank you, James Quirke. I am much obliged to you indeed.

Mr. Quirke. Ah, be quiet, woman ; be quiet——

Mrs. Delane. And let me tell you, James Quirke, that I would sooner starve and see everyone belonging to me starve than to eat the size of a thimble of any joint that ever was on your rack or that ever will be on it, whatever the soldiers may eat that have no other thing to get, or the English that devour all sorts, or the poor ravenous people that's down by the sea ! (She turns to go into shop.)

Mr. Quirke (stopping her). Don't be talking foolishness, woman. Who said you took my meat? Give heed to me now. There must some other message have come. The Sergeant must have got some other message.

Mrs. Delane (sulkily). If there is any way for a message to come that is quicker than to come by the wires, tell me what it is and I'll be obliged to you?

Mr. Quirke. The Sergeant was up here making an excuse he was sticking up that notice. What was he doing here, I ask you?

Mrs. Delane. How would I know what brought him?

Mr. Quirke. It is what he did; he made as if to go away—he turned back again and I shaving—he brought away the sheep—he will have it for evidence against me——

Mrs. Delane (interested). That might be so.

Mr. Quirke. I would sooner it to have been any other beast nearly ever I had upon the rack.

Mrs. Delane. Is that so?

Mr. Quirke. I bade the Widow Early to kill it a fortnight ago—but she would not, she was that covetous!

Mrs. Delane. What was on it?

Mr. Quirke. How would I know what was on it ? Whatever was on it, it was the will of God put it upon it——wasted it was, and shivering, and refusing its share.

Mrs. Delane. The poor thing.

Mr. Quirke. Gone all to nothing——wore away like a flock of thread. It did not weigh as much as a lamb of two months.

Mrs. Delane. It is likely the Inspector will bring it to Dublin ?

Mr. Quirke. The ribs of it streaky with the dint of patent medicines——

Mrs. Delane. I wonder is it to the Petty Sessions you'll be brought or is it to the Assizes ?

Mr. Quirke. I'll speak up to them. I'll make my defence. What can the Army expect at fippence a pound ?

Mrs. Delane. It is likely there will be no bail allowed ?

Mr. Quirke. Would they be wanting me to give them good quality meat out of my own pocket ? Is it to encourage them to fight the poor Indians and Africans they would have me ? It's the Anti-Enlisting Societies should pay the fine for me.

Mrs. Delane. It's not a fine will be put on you, I'm afraid. It's five years in gaol you will be apt to be getting. Well, I'll try and be a good neighbour to poor Mrs. Quirke.

(Mr. Quirke, who has been stamping up and down, sits down and weeps. Halvey comes in and stands on one side.)

Mr. Quirke. Hadn't I heart-scalding enough before, striving to rear five weak children ?

Mrs. Delane. I suppose they will be sent to the Industrial Schools ?

Mr. Quirke. My poor wife——

Mrs. Delane. I'm afraid the workhouse——

Mr. Quirke. And she out in an ass-car at this minute helping me to follow my trade.

Mrs. Delane. I hope they will not arrest her along with you.

Mr. Quirke. I'll give myself up to justice. I'll plead guilty ! I'll be recommended to mercy !

Mrs. Delane. It might be best for you.

Mr. Quirke. Who would think so great a misfortune could come upon a family through the bringing away of one sheep !

Hyacinth (coming forward). Let you make yourself easy.

Mr. Quirke. Easy ! It's easy to say let you make yourself easy.

Hyacinth. I can tell you where it is.

Mr. Quirke. Where what is ?

Hyacinth. The sheep you are fretting after.

Mr. Quirke. What do you know about it ?

Hyacinth. I know everything about it.

Mr. Quirke. I suppose the Sergeant told you ?

Hyacinth. He told me nothing.

Mr. Quirke. I suppose the whole town knows it, so ?

Hyacinth. No one knows it, as yet.

Mr. Quirke. And the Sergeant didn't see it ?

Hyacinth. No one saw it or brought it away but myself.

Mr. Quirke. Where did you put it at all ?

Hyacinth. In the ditch behind the church wall. In among the nettles it is. Look at the way they have me stung. (Holds out hands.)

Mr. Quirke. In the ditch ! The best hiding place in the town.

Hyacinth. I never thought it would bring such great trouble upon you. You can't say anyway I did not tell you.

Mr. Quirke. You yourself that brought it away and that hid it ! I suppose it was coming in the train you got information about the message to the police.

Hyacinth. What now do you say to me ?

Mr. Quirke. Say ! I say I am as glad to hear what you said as if it was the Lord telling me I'd be in heaven this minute.

Hyacinth. What are you going to do to me ?

Mr. Quirke. Do, is it ? (Grasps his hand.)

Any earthly thing you would wish me to do, I will do it.

Hyacinth. I suppose you will tell——

Mr. Quirke. Tell ! It's I that will tell when all is quiet. It is I will give you the good name through the town !

Hyacinth. I don't well understand.

Mr. Quirke (embracing him). The man that preserved me !

Hyacinth. That preserved you ?

Mr. Quirke. That kept me from ruin !

Hyacinth. From ruin ?

Mr. Quirke. That saved me from disgrace !

Hyacinth (to Mrs. Delane). What is he saying at all ?

Mr. Quirke. From the Inspector !

Hyacinth. What is he talking about ?

Mr. Quirke. From the magistrates !

Hyacinth. He is making some mistake.

Mr. Quirke. From the Winter Assizes !

Hyacinth. Is he out of his wits ?

Mr. Quirke. Five years in gaol !

Hyacinth. Hasn't he the queer talk ?

Mr. Quirke. The loss of the contract !

Hyacinth. Are my own wits gone astray ?

Mr. Quirke. What way can I repay you ?

Hyacinth (shouting). I tell you I took the sheep——

Hyacinth Halvey

Mr. Quirke. You did, God reward you !

Hyacinth. I stole away with it——

Mr. Quirke. The blessing of the poor on you !

Hyacinth. I put it out of sight——

Mr. Quirke. The blessing of my five children——

Hyacinth. I may as well say nothing——

Mrs. Delane. Let you be quiet now, Quirke. Here's the Sergeant coming to search the shop——

(Sergeant comes in. Quirke leaves go of Halvey, who arranges his hat, &c.)

Sergeant. The Department to blazes !

Mrs. Delane. What is it is putting you out ?

Sergeant. To go to the train to meet the lecturer, and there to get a message through the guard that he was unavoidably detained in the South, holding an inquest on the remains of a drake.

Mrs. Delane. The lecturer, is it ?

Sergeant. To be sure. What else would I be talking of ? The lecturer has failed me, and where am I to go looking for a person that I would think fitting to take his place ?

Mrs. Delane. And that's all ? And you didn't get any message but the one ?

Sergeant. Is that all ? I am surprised at you, Mrs. Delane. Isn't it enough to upset a man, within three-quarters of an hour of the time of the meeting? Where, I would ask you, am I to find a man that has education enough and wit enough and character enough to put up speaking on the platform on the minute?

Mr. Quirke (jumps up). It is I myself will tell you that.

Sergeant. You!

Mr. Quirke (slapping Halvey on the back). Look at here, Sergeant. There is not one word was said in all those papers about this young man before you but it is true. And there could be no good thing said of him that would be too good for him.

Sergeant. It might not be a bad idea

Mr. Quirke. Whatever the paper said about him, Sergeant, I can say more again. It has come to my knowledge—by chance—that since he came to this town that young man has saved a whole family from destruction.

Sergeant. That is much to his credit—helping the rural classes—

Mr. Quirke. A family and a long family, big and little, like sods of turf—and they depending on a—on one that might be on his way to dark trouble at this minute if it was not for his assistance. Believe me, he is the most sensible man, and the wittiest, and the kindest, and the best helper of the poor that ever stood before you in this square. Is not that so, Mrs. Delane?

Mrs. Delane. It is true indeed. Where he gets his wisdom and his wit and his information from I don't know, unless it might be that he is gifted from above.

Sergeant. Well, Mrs. Delane, I think we have settled that question. Mr. Halvey, you will be the speaker at the meeting. The lecturer sent these notes—You can lengthen them into a speech. You can call to the people of Cloon to stand out, to begin the building of their character. I saw a lecturer do it one time at Dundrum. "Come up here," he said, "Dare to be a Daniel," he said——

Hyacinth. I can't—I won't——

Sergeant (looking at papers and thrusting them into his hand). You will find it quite easy. I will conduct you to the platform—these papers before you and a glass of water—That's settled. (Turns to go.) Follow me on to the Courthouse in half an hour—I must go to the barracks first—I heard there was a telegram—(Calls back as he goes.) Don't be late, Mrs. Delane. Mind, Quirke, you promised to come.

Mrs. Delane. Well, it's time for me to make—an end of settling myself—and indeed, Mr. Quirke, you'd best do the same.

Mr. Quirke (rubbing his cheek). I suppose so. I had best keep on good terms with him for the present. (Turns.) Well, now, I had a great escape this day.

(Both go in as Fardy reappears whistling.)

Hyacinth (sitting down). I don't know in the world what has come upon the world that the half of the people of it should be cracked!

Fardy. Weren't you found out yet?

Hyacinth. Found out, is it? I don't know what you mean by being found out.

Fardy. Didn't he miss the sheep?

Hyacinth. He did, and I told him it was I took it—and what happened I declare to goodness I don't know—Will you look at these? (Holds out notes.)

Fardy. Papers! Are they more testimonials?

Hyacinth. They are what is worse (Gives a hoarse laugh.) Will you come and see me on the platform—these in my hand—and I speaking—giving out advice. (Fardy whistles.) Why didn't you tell me, the time you advised me to steal a sheep, that in this town it would qualify a man to go preaching, and the priest in the chair looking on.

Fardy. The time I took a few apples that had fallen off a stall, they did not ask me to hold a meeting. They welted me well.

Hyacinth (looking round). I would take apples if I could see them. I wish I had broke my neck before I left Carrow and I'd be better off! I wish I had got six months the time I was caught setting snares—I wish I had robbed a church.

Fardy. Would a Protestant church do?

Hyacinth. I suppose it wouldn't be so great a sin.

Fardy. It's likely the Sergeant would think worse of it—Anyway, if you want to rob one, it's the Protestant church is the handiest.

Hyacinth (getting up). Show me what way to do it?

Fardy (pointing). I was going around it a few minutes ago, to see might there be e'er a dog scenting the sheep, and I noticed the window being out.

Hyacinth. Out, out and out?

Fardy. It was, where they are putting coloured glass in it for the distiller—

Hyacinth. What good does that do me?

Fardy. Every good. You could go in by that window if you had some person to give you a hoist. Whatever riches there is to get in it then, you'll get them.

Hyacinth. I don't want riches. I'll give you all I will find if you will come and hoist me.

Fardy. Here is Miss Joyce coming to bring you to your lodging. Sure I brought your bag to it, the time you were away with the sheep——

Hyacinth. Run ! Run !

(They go off. Enter Miss Joyce.)

Miss Joyce. Are you here, Mrs. Delane ? Where, can you tell me, is Mr. Halvey ?

Mrs. Delane (coming out dressed). It's likely he is gone on to the Courthouse. Did you hear he is to be in the chair and to make an address to the meeting ?

Miss Joyce. He is getting on fast. His Reverence says he will be a good help in the parish. Who would think, now, there would be such a godly young man in a little place like Carrow !

(Enter Sergeant in a hurry, with telegram.)

Sergeant. What time did this telegram arrive, Mrs. Delane ?

Mrs. Delane. I couldn't be rightly sure, Sergeant. But sure it's marked on it, unless the clock I have is gone wrong.

Sergeant. It is marked on it. And I have the time I got it marked on my own watch.

Mrs. Delane. Well, now, I wonder none of the police would have followed you with it from the barracks——and they with so little to do——

Sergeant (looking in at Quirke's shop). Well, I am sorry to do what I have to do, but duty is duty.

(He ransacks shop. Mrs. Delane looks on.)

Mr. Quirke puts his head out of window.

Mr. Quirke. What is that going on inside ?
(No answer.) Is there anyone inside, I ask ? (No answer.) It must be that dog of Tannian's—— wait till I get at him.

Mrs. Delane. It is Sergeant Carden, Mr. Quirke. He would seem to be looking for something——

(Mr. Quirke appears in shop. Sergeant comes out, makes another dive, taking up sacks, &c.)

Mr. Quirke. I'm greatly afraid I am just out of meat, Sergeant——and I'm sorry now to disoblige you, and you not being in the habit of dealing with me——

Sergeant. I should think not, indeed.

Mr. Quirke. Looking for a tender little bit of lamb, I suppose you are, for Mrs. Carden and the youngsters ?

Sergeant. I am not.

Mr. Quirke. If I had it now, I'd be proud to offer it to you, and make no charge. I'll be killing a good kid to-morrow. Mrs. Carden might fancy a bit of it——

Sergeant. I have had orders to search your establishment for unwholesome meat, and I am come here to do it.

Mr. Quirke (sitting down with a smile). Is that so? Well, isn't it a wonder the schemers does be in the world.

Sergeant. It is not the first time there have been complaints.

Mr. Quirke. I suppose not. Well, it is on their own head it will fall at the last!

Sergeant. I have found nothing so far.

Mr. Quirke. I suppose not, indeed. What is there you could find, and it not in it?

Sergeant. Have you no meat at all upon the premises?

Mr. Quirke. I have, indeed, a nice barrel of bacon.

Sergeant. What way did it die?

Mr. Quirke. It would be hard for me to say that. American it is. How would I know what way they do be killing the pigs out there? Machinery. I suppose, they have——steam hammers——

Sergeant. Is there nothing else here at all?

Mr. Quirke. I give you my word, there is no meat living or dead in this place, but yourself and myself and that bird above in the cage.

Sergeant. Well, I must tell the Inspector I could find nothing. But mind yourself for the future.

Mr. Quirke. Thank you, Sergeant. I will do that. (Enter Fardy. He stops short.)

Sergeant. It was you delayed that message to me, I suppose? You'd best mend your ways or I'll have something to say to you. (Seizes and shakes him.)

Fardy. That's the way everyone does be faulting me. (Whimpers.)

(The Sergeant gives him another shake. A half-crown falls out of his pocket.)

Miss Joyce (picking it up). A half-a-crown! Where, now, did you get that much, Fardy?

Fardy. Where did I get it, is it?

Miss Joyce. I'll engage it was in no honest way you got it.

Fardy. I picked it up in the street——

Miss Joyce. If you did, why didn't you bring it to the Sergeant or to his Reverence?

Mrs. Delane. And some poor person, may be, being at the loss of it.

Miss Joyce. I'd best bring it to his Reverence. Come with me, Fardy, till he will question you about it.

Fardy. It was not altogether in the street I found it——

Miss Joyce. There, now ! I knew you got it in no good way ! Tell me, now.

Fardy. It was playing pitch and toss I won it——

Miss Joyce. And who would play for half-crowns with the like of you, Fardy Farrell ? Who was it, now ?

Fardy. It was——a stranger——

Miss Joyce. Do you hear that ? A stranger ! Did you see e'er a stranger in this town, Mrs. Delane, or Sergeant Carden, or Mr. Quirke ?

Mr. Quirke. Not a one.

Sergeant. There was no stranger here.

Mrs. Delane. There could not be one here without me knowing it.

Fardy. I tell you there was.

Miss Joyce. Come on, then, and tell who was he to his Reverence.

Sergeant (taking other arm). Or to the bench.

Fardy. I did get it, I tell you, from a stranger.

Sergeant. Where is he, so ?

Fardy. He's in some place——not far away.

Sergeant. Bring me to him.

Fardy. He'll be coming here.

• Sergeant. Tell me the truth and it will be better for you.

Hyacinth Halvey

Fardy (weeping). Let me go and I will.

Sergeant (letting go). Now,—who did you get it from ?

Fardy. From that young chap came to-day, Mr. Halvey.

All. Mr. Halvey !

Mr. Quirke (indignantly). What are you saying, you young ruffian you ? Hyacinth Halvey to be playing pitch and toss with the like of you !

Fardy. I didn't say that.

Miss Joyce. You did say it. You said it now.

Mr. Quirke. Hyacinth Halvey ! The best man that ever came into this town !

Miss Joyce. Well, what lies he has !

Mr. Quirke. It's my belief the half-crown is a bad one. May be it's to pass it off it was given to him. There were tinkers in the town at the time of the fair. Give it here to me. (Bites it.) No, indeed, it's sound enough. Here, Sergeant, it's best for you take it.

(Gives it to Sergeant, who examines it.)

Sergeant. Can it be ? Can it be what I think it to be ?

Mr. Quirke. What is it ? What do you take it to be ?

Sergeant. It is, it is. I know it. I know this half-crown——

Mr. Quirke. That is a queer thing, now.

Sergeant. I know it well. I have been handling it in the church for the last twelve-month——

Mr. Quirke. Is that so ?

Sergeant. It is the nest-egg half-crown we hand round in the collection plate every Sunday morning. I know it by the dint on the Queen's temples and the crooked scratch under her nose.

Mr. Quirke (examining it). So there is, too.

Sergeant. This is a bad business. It has been stolen from the church.

All. O ! O ! O !

Sergeant (seizing Fardy). You have robbed the church !

Fardy (terrified). I tell you I never did !

Sergeant. I have the proof of it.

Fardy. Say what you like ! I never put a foot in it !

Sergeant. How did you get this, so ?

Miss Joyce. I suppose from the stranger.

Mrs. Delane. I suppose it was Hyacinth Halvey gave it to you, now ?

Fardy. It was so.

Sergeant. I suppose it was he robbed the church.

Fardy (sobs). You will not believe me if I say it.

Mr. Quirke. O! the young vagabond!
Let me get at him!

Mrs. Delane. Here he is himself now!

(Hyacinth comes in. Fardy releases himself and creeps behind him.)

Mrs. Delane. It is time you to come, Mr. Halvey, and shut the mouth of this young schemer.

Miss Joyce. I would like you to hear what he says of you, Mr. Halvey. Pitch and toss, he says.

Mr. Quirke. Robbery, he says.

Mrs. Delane. Robbery of a church.

Sergeant. He has had a bad name long enough.
Let him go to a reformatory now.

Fardy (clinging to Hyacinth). Save me, save me! I'm a poor boy trying to knock out a way of living; I'll be destroyed if I go to a reformatory. (Kneels and clings to Hyacinth's knees.)

Hyacinth. I'll save you easy enough.

Fardy. Don't let me be gaoled!

Hyacinth. I am going to tell them.

Fardy. I'm a poor orphan——

Hyacinth. Will you let me speak?

Fardy. I'll get no more chance in the world——

Hyacinth. Sure I'm trying to free you——

Fardy. It will be tasked to me always.

Hyacinth. Be quiet, can't you.

Fardy. Don't you desert me !

Hyacinth. Will you be silent ?

Fardy. Take it on yourself.

Hyacinth. I will if you'll let me.

Fardy. Tell them you did it.

Hyacinth. I am going to do that.

Fardy. Tell them it was you got in at the window.

Hyacinth. I will ! I will !

Fardy. Say it was you robbed the box.

Hyacinth. I'll say it ! I'll say it !

Fardy. It being open !

Hyacinth. Let me tell, let me tell.

Fardy. Of all that was in it.

Hyacinth. I'll tell them that.

Fardy. And gave it to me.

Hyacinth (putting hand on his mouth and dragging him up). Will you stop and let me speak ?

Sergeant. We can't be wasting time. Give him here to me.

Hyacinth. I can't do that. He must be let alone.

Sergeant (seizing him). He'll be let alone in the lock-up.

Hyacinth. He must not be brought there.

Sergeant. I'll let no man get him off.

Hyacinth. I will get him off.

Sergeant. You will not !

Hyacinth. I will !

Sergeant. Do you think to buy him off ?

Hyacinth. I will buy him off with my own confession.

Sergeant. And what will that be ?

Hyacinth. It was I robbed the church.

Sergeant. That is likely indeed !

Hyacinth. Let him go, and take me. I tell you I did it.

Sergeant. It would take witnesses to prove that.

Hyacinth (pointing to Fardy). He will be witness.

Fardy. O ! Mr. Halvey, I would not wish to do that. Get me off and I will say nothing.

Hyacinth. Sure you must. You will be put on oath in the court.

Fardy. I will not ! I will not ! All the world knows I don't understand the nature of an oath !

Mr. Quirke (coming forward). Is it blind ye all are ?

Mrs. Delane. What are you talking about ?

Mr. Quirke. Is it fools ye all are ?

Miss Joyce. Speak for yourself.

Hyacinth Halvey

71

Mr. Quirke. Is it idiots ye all are ?

Sergeant. Mind who you're talking to.

Mr. Quirke (seizing Hyacinth's hands). Can't you see ? Can't you hear ? Where are your wits. Was ever such a thing seen in this town ?

Mrs. Delane. Say out what you have to say.

Mr. Quirke. A walking saint he is !

Mrs. Delane. Maybe so.

Mr. Quirke. The preserver of the poor ! Talk of the holy martyrs ! They are nothing at all to what he is ! Will you look at him ! To save that poor boy he is going ! To take the blame on himself he is going ! To say he himself did the robbery he is going ! Before the magistrate he is going ! To gaol he is going ! Taking the blame on his own head ! Putting the sin on his own shoulders ! Letting on to have done a robbery ! Telling a lie—that it may be forgiven him—to his own injury ! Doing all that I tell you to save the character of a miserable slack lad, that rose in poverty.

(Murmur of admiration from all.)

Mr. Quirke. Now, what do you say ?

Sergeant (pressing his hand). Mr. Halvey, you have given us all a lesson. To please you, I will make no information against the boy. (Shakes him and helps him up.) I will put back the half-crown in the poor-box next Sunday. (To Fardy)—What have you to say to your benefactor ?

Hyacinth Halvey

Fardy. I'm obliged to you, Mr. Halvey. You behaved very decent to me, very decent indeed, I'll never let a word be said against you if I live to be a hundred years.

Sergeant (wiping eyes with a blue handkerchief). I will tell it at the meeting. It will be a great encouragement to them to build up their character. I'll tell it to the priest and he taking the chair——

Hyacinth. O stop, will you——

Mr. Quirke. The chair. It's in the chair he himself should be. It's in a chair we will put him now. It's to chair him through the streets we will. Sure he'll be an example and a blessing to the whole of the town. (Seizes Halvey and seats him in chair.) Now, Sergeant, give a hand. Here, Fardy.

(They all lift the chair with Halvey in it. wildly protesting.)

Mr. Quirke. Come along now to the Court-house. Three cheers for Hyacinth Halvey ! Hip ! hip ! hoora !

(Cheers heard in the distance as the curtain drops.)

THE RISING OF THE MOON

PE~~R~~SONS

SERGEANT.

POLICEMAN B.

POLICEMAN X.

A RAGGED MAN.

THE RISING OF THE MOON

SCENE : Side of a quay in a seaport town. Some posts and chains. A large barrel. Enter three policemen. Moonlight.

(Sergeant, who is older than the others, crosses the stage to right and looks down steps. The others put down a pastepot and unroll a bundle of placards.

Policeman B. I think this would be a good place to put up a notice. (He points to barrel.

Policeman X. Better ask him. (Calls to Sergt.) Will this be a good place for a placard ?

(No answer.

Policeman B. Will we put up a notice here on the barrel ?

(No answer.

Sergeant. There's a flight of steps here that leads to the water. This is a place that should be minded well. If he got down here, his friends might have a boat to meet him ; they might send it in here from outside.

Policeman B. Would the barrel be a good place to put a notice up ?

Sergeant. It might ; you can put it there.

(They paste the notice up.

82 The Rising of the Moon

Sergeant (reading it). Dark hair—dark eyes, smooth face, height five feet five—there's not much to take hold of in that—It's a pity I had no chance of seeing him before he broke out of gaol. They say he's a wonder, that it's he makes all the plans for the whole organisation. There isn't another man in Ireland would have broken gaol the way he did. He must have some friends among the gaolers.

Policeman B. A hundred pounds is little enough for the Government to offer for him. You may be sure any man in the force that takes him will get promotion.

Sergeant. I'll mind this place myself. I wouldn't wonder at all if he came this way. He might come slipping along there (points to side of quay), and his friends might be waiting for him there (points down steps), and once he got away it's little chance we'd have of finding him; it's maybe under a load of kelp he'd be in a fishing boat, and not one to help a married man that wants it to the reward.

Policeman X. And if we get him itself, nothing but abuse on our heads for it from the people, and maybe from our own relations.

Sergeant. Well, we have to do our duty in the force. Haven't we the whole country depending on us to keep law and order? X It's those that are down would be up and those that are up would be down, if it wasn't for us. Well, hurry on, you have plenty of other places to placard yet, and come back here then to me. You can take the lantern. Don't be too long now. It's very lonesome here with nothing but the moon.

Policeiman B. It's a pity we can't stop with you. The Government should have brought more police into the town, with him in gaol, and at assize time too. Well, good luck to your watch. (They go out.)

Sergeant (walks up and down once or twice and looks at placard). A hundred pounds and promotion sure. There must be a great deal of spending in a hundred pounds. It's a pity some honest man not to be the better of that.

• (A ragged man appears at left and tries to slip past. Sergeant suddenly turns.)

Sergeant. Where are you going ?

Man. I'm a poor ballad-singer, your honour. I thought to sell some of these (holds out bundle of ballads) to the sailors. (He goes on.)

Sergeant. Stop ! Didn't I tell you to stop ? You can't go on there.

Man. Oh, very well. It's a hard thing to be poor. All the world's against the poor Sergeant. Who are you ?

84 The Rising of the Moon.

Man. You'd be as wise as myself if I told you, but I don't mind. I'm one Jimmy Walsh, a ballad-singer.

Sergeant. Jimmy Walsh? I don't know that name.

Man. Ah, sure, they know it well enough in Ennis. Were you ever in Ennis, sergeant?

Sergeant. What brought you here?

Man. Sure, it's to the assizes I came, thinking I might make a few shillings here or there. It's in the one train with the judges I came.

Sergeant. Well, if you came so far, you may as well go farther, for you'll walk out of this.

Man. I will, I will; I'll just go on where I was going. (Goes towards steps.)

Sergeant. Come back from those steps; no one has leave to pass down them to-night. •

Man. I'll just sit on the top of the steps till I see will some sailor buy a ballad off me that would give me my supper. They do be late going back to the ship. It's often I saw them in Cork carried down the quay in a hand-cart.

Sergeant. Move on, I tell you. I won't have anyone lingering about the quay to-night.

Man. Well, I'll go. It's the poor have the hard life! Maybe yourself might like one, sergeant. Here's a good sheet now. (Turns one over.) "Content and a pipe"—that's not much. "The Peeler and the goat"—you wouldn't like that "Johnny Hart"—that's a lovely song.

The Rising of the Moon 85

Sergeant. Move on.

Man. Ah, wait till you hear it. (Sings)—

There was a rich farmer's daughter lived near the town of Ross ;

She courted a Highland soldier, his name was Johnny Hart ;

Says the mother to her daughter, "I'll go distracted mad

If you marry that Highland soldier dressed up in Highland plaid.

Sergeant. Stop that noise.

(Man wraps up his ballads and shuffl towards the steps.

Sergeant. Where are you going ?

Man. Sure you told me to be going am going.

Sergeant. Don't be a fool. I di you to go that way ; I told you to g the town.

Man. Back to the town, is it ?

Sergeant (taking him by the sho shoving him before him). Here, I'll sho way. Be off with you. What are you for ?

86 The Rising of the Moon

Man (who has been keeping his eye on the notice, points to it). I think I know what you're waiting for, sergeant.

Sergeant. What's that to you?

Man. And I know well the man you're waiting for—I know him well—I'll be going.

(He shuffles on)

Sergeant. You know him? Come back here. What sort is he?

Man. Come back is it, sergeant? Do you want to have me killed?

Sergeant. Why do you say that?

Man. Never mind. I'm going. I wouldn't be in your shoes if the reward was ten times as much. (Goes on off stage to left.) Not if it was ten times as much.

Sergeant (rushing after him). Come back, come back. (Drags him back.) What sort Where did you see him?

I saw him in my own place, in the Clare. I tell you you wouldn't like to go at him. You'd be afraid to be in place with him. There isn't a weapon 't know the use of, and as to strength, they are as hard as that board (slaps

Man. Is he as bad as that?

Sergeant. He is then.

The Rising of the Moon 87

Sergeant. Do you tell me so?

Man. There was a poor man in our place, a sergeant from Ballyvaughan.—It was with a lump of stone he did it.

Sergeant. I never heard of that.

Man. And you wouldn't, sergeant. It's not everything that happens gets in the papers. And there was a policeman in plain clothes, too. . . It is in Limerick he was. . . after the time of the attack on the It was barrack at Kilmallock. . . Moonlight . . . like this . . . waterside. . . Nothing was known for certain.

Sergeant. Do you say so? It's a terrible county to belong to.

Man. That's so, indeed! You might be standing there, looking out that way, thinking you saw him coming up this side of the quay (points), and he might be coming up this other side (points), and he'd be on you before you knew where you were.

Sergeant. It's a whole troop of police they ought to put here to stop a man like that.

Man. But if you'd like me to stop with you, I could be looking down this side. I could be sitting up here on this barrel.

Sergeant. And you know him well, too?

Man. I'd know him a mile off, sergeant.

88 The. Rising of the Moon

Sergeant. But you wouldn't want to share the reward ?

Man. Is it a poor man like me, that has to be going the roads and singing in fairs, to have the name on him that he took a reward ? But you don't want me. I'll be safer in the town.

Sergeant. Well, you can stop.

Man (getting up on barrel). All right, sergeant. I wonder, now, you're not tired out, sergeant, walking up and down the way you are.

Sergeant. If I'm tired I'm used to it.

Man. You might have hard work before you to-night yet. Take it easy while you can. There's plenty of room up here on the barrel, and you see farther when you're higher up.

Sergeant. Maybe so. (Gets up beside him on barrel, facing right. They sit back to back, looking different ways.) You made me feel a bit queer with the way you talked.

Man. Give me a match sergeant (he gives it, and Man lights pipe) ; take a draw yourself ? It'll quiet you. Wait now till I give you a light, but you needn't turn round. Don't take your eye off the quay for the life of you.

Sergeant. Never fear, I won't. (Lights pipe. They both smoke.) Indeed it's a hard thing to be in the force, out at night and no thanks for it, for all the danger we're in. And it's little we get but abuse from the people, and no choice but to obey our orders, and never asked when a man is sent into danger, if you are a married man with a family.

Man (sings)—

As through the hills I walked to view the hills and shamrock plain,

I stood awhile where nature smiles to view the rocks and streams,

On a matron fair I fixed my eyes beneath a fertile vale,

As she sang her song it was on the wrong of poor old Granuaile.

Sergeant. Stop that ; that's no song to be singing in these times.

Man. Ah, sergeant, I was only singing to keep my heart up. It sinks when I think of him. To think of us two sitting here, and he creeping up the quay, maybe, to get to us.

Sergeant. Are you keeping a good lookout ?

Man. I am ; and for no reward too. Amn't I the foolish man ? But when I saw a man in trouble, I never could help trying to get him out of it. What's that ? Did something hit me ?

(Rubs his heart.)

Sergeant (patting him on the shoulder). You will get your reward in heaven.

Man. I know that, I know that, sergeant, but life is precious.

90 The Rising of the Moon

Sergeant. Well, you can sing if it gives you more courage.

Man (sings)—

Her head was bare, her hands and feet with iron bands were bound,

Her pensive strain and plaintive wail mingles with the evening gale,

And the song she sang with mournful air, I am
old Granuaile.

Her lips so sweet that monarchs kissed . . .

Sergeant. That's not it. . . . "Her gown she wore was stained with gore." . . . That's it—you missed that.

Man. You're right, sergeant, so it is ; I missed it. (Repeats line.) But to think of a man like you knowing a song like that.

Sergeant. There's many a thing a man might know and might not have any wish for.

Man. Now, I daresay, sergeant, in your youth, you used to be sitting up on a wall, the way you are sitting up on this barrel now, and the other lads beside you, and you singing
"Granuaile" ? . . .

Sergeant. I did then.

Man. And the "Shan Bhean Bhocht" ? . . .

Sergeant. I did then.

Man. And the "Green on the Cape" ?

Sergeant. That was one of them.

Man. And maybe the man you are watching.

The Rising of the Moon 91

for to-night used to be sitting on the wall, when he was young, and singing those same songs. . . . It's a queer world. . . .

Sergeant. Whisht ! . . . I think I see something coming. . . . It's only a dog.

Man. And isn't it a queer world ? . . . Maybe it's one of the boys you used to be singing with that time you will be arresting to-day or to-morrow, and sending into the dock. . . .

Sergeant. That's true indeed.

Man. And maybe one night, after you had been singing, if the other boys had told you some plan they had, some plan to free the country, you might have joined with them. . . . and maybe it is you might be in trouble now.

Sergeant. Well, who knows but I might ? I had a great spirit in those days.

Man. It's a queer world, sergeant, and it's little any mother knows when she sees her child creeping on the floor what might happen to it before it has gone through its life, or who will be who in the end.

Sergeant. That's a queer thought now, and a true thought. Wait now till I think it out . . . If it wasn't for the sense I have, and for my wife and family, and for me joining the force the time I did, it might be myself now would be after breaking gaol and hiding in the dark, and it might be him that's hiding in the dark and that got out of gaol would be sitting up where I am on this barrel. . . . And it might be myself would be creeping up trying to make my escape from himself, and it might be himself would be keeping the law, and myself would be breaking it, and myself would be trying maybe to put a bullet in his head, or to take up a lump of a stone the way you said he did . . . no, that myself did . . . Oh! (Gasps. After a pause.) What's that? (Grasps man's arm.)

Man (jumps off barrel and listens, looking out over water.) It's nothing, sergeant.

Sergeant. I thought it might be a boat. I had a notion there might be friends of his coming about the quays with a boat.

Man. Sergeant, I am thinking it was with the people you were, and not with the law you were when you were a young man.

Sergeant. Well, if I was foolish then, that time's gone.

Man. Maybe, sergeant, it comes into your head sometimes, in spite of your belt and your tunic, that it might have been as well for you to have followed Granuaile.

The Rising of the Moon 93

Sergeant. It's no business of yours what I think.

Man. Maybe, sergeant, you'll be on the side of the country yet.

Sergeant (gets off barrel). Don't talk to me like that. I have my duties and I know them. (Looks round.) That was a boat ; I hear the oars.

[Goes to the step, and looks down.]

Man (sings)—

O, then, tell me, Shawn O'Farrell,
Where the gathering is to be.
In the old spot by the river
Right well known to you and me !

Sergeant. Stop that ! Stop that, I tell you !

Man (sings louder).

One word more, for signal token,
Whistle up the marching tune,
With your pike upon your shoulder,
At the Rising of the Moon.

Sergeant. If you don't stop that, I'll arrest you.

[A whistle from below answers, repeating the air.]

Sergeant. That's a signal (stands between him and steps.) You must not pass this way . . . Step farther back . . . Who are you ? You are no ballad-singer.

Man. You needn't ask who I am ; that placard will tell you (points to placard.)

94 The Rising of the Moon

Sergeant. You are the man I am looking for.

Man (takes off hat and wig. Sergeant seizes them.) I am. There's a hundred pounds on my head. There is a friend of mine below in a boat. [He knows a safe place to bring me to.

Sergeant (looking still at hat and wig). It's a pity! it's a pity. You deceived me. You deceived me well.

Man. I am a friend of Granuaile. There is a hundred pounds on my head.

Sergeant. It's a pity, it's a pity!

Man. Will you let me pass, or must I make you let me?

Sergeant. I am in the force. I will not let you pass.

Man. I thought to do it with my tongue (puts hand in breast). What is that?

(Voice of Policeman X outside.) Here, this is where we left him.

Sergeant. It's my comrades coming.

Man. You won't betray me . . . the friend of Granuaile (slips behind barrel).

(Voice of Policeman B. That was the last of the placards.

Policeman X (as they come in). If he makes his escape it won't be unknown he'll make it.

(Sergeant puts hat and wig behind his back.

Policeman B. Did anyone come this way?

The Rising of the Moon 95

Sergeant (after a pause.) No one.

Policeman B. No one at all ?

Sergeant. No one at all.

Policeman B. We had no orders to go back to the station ; we can stop along with you.

Sergeant. I don't want you. There is nothing for you to do here.

Policeman B. You bade us to come back here and keep watch with you.

Sergeant. I'd sooner be alone. Would any man come this way and you making all that talk ? It is better the place to be quiet.

Policeman B. Well, we'll leave you the lantern anyhow. (Hands it to him.)

Sergeant. I don't want it. Bring it with you.

Policeman B. You might want it. There are clouds coming up and you have the darkness of the night before you yet. I'll leave it over here on the barrel. (Goes to barrel)

Sergeant. Bring it with you I tell you. No more talk.

Policeman B. Well, I thought it might be a comfort to you. I often think when I have it in my hand and can be flashing it about into every dark corner (doing so) that it's the same as being beside the fire at home, and the bits of bog-wood blazing up now and again.

96 The Rising of the Moon

(Flashes it about, now on the barrel, now on Sergeant.

Sergeant (furious). Be off the two of you, yourselves and your lantern !

(They go out. Man comes from behind barrel. He and Sergeant stand looking at one another.

Sergeant. What are you waiting for ?

Man. For my hat, of course, and my wig. You wouldn't wish me to get my death of cold ?

(Sergeant gives them.

Man (going towards steps). Well, good-night, comrade, and thank you. You did me a good turn to-night, and I'm obliged to you. Maybe I'll be able to do as much for you when the small rise up and the big fall down . . . when we all change places at the Rising (waves his hand and disappears) of the Moon.

Sergeant (turning his back to audience and reading placard). A hundred pounds reward ! A hundred pounds ! (Turns towards audience.) I wonder now, am I as great a fool as I think I am ?

Curtain.

THE JACKDAW

PERSONS

JOSEPH NESTOR	An Army Pensioner
MICHAEL COONEY	A Farmer.
MRS. BRODERICK	A Small Shopkeeper
TOMMY NALLY	A Pauper.
SIBBY FAHY	An Orange Seller.
TIMOTHY WARD	A Process Server.

THE JACKDAW

SCENE: Interior of a small general shop at Cloon. Mrs. Broderick sitting down. Tommy Nally sitting eating an orange Sibby has given him. Sibby, with basket on her arm, is looking out of door.

Sibby. The people are gathering to the door of the Court. The Magistrates will be coming there before long. Here is Timothy Ward coming up the street.

Timothy Ward (coming to door). Did you get that summons I left here for you ere yesterday, Mrs. Broderick?

Mrs. Broderick. I believe it's there in under the canister. (Takes it out.) It had my mind tossed looking at it there before me. I know well what is in it if I made no fist of reading it itself. It's no wonder with all I had to go through if the reading and writing got scattered on me.

Ward. You know it is on this day you have to appear in the Court?

The Jackdaw

Mrs. Broderick. It isn't easy forget that, though indeed it is hard for me to be keeping anything in my head these times, but maybe remembering to-morrow the thing I was saying to-day.

Ward. Up to one o'clock the magistrates will be able to attend to you, ma'am, before they will go out eating their meal.

Mrs. Broderick. Haven't I the mean, begrudging creditors now that would put me into the Court? Sure it's a terrible thing to go in it and to be bound to speak nothing but the truth. When people would meet with you after, they would remember your face in the Court. What way would they be certain was it in or outside of the dock?

Ward. It is not in the dock you will be put this time. And there will be no bodily harm done to you, but to seize your furniture and your goods. It's best for me to be going there myself and not to be wasting my time.

(Goes out.)

Mrs. Broderick. Many a one taking my goods on credit and I seeing their face no more. But nothing would satisfy the people of this district. Sure the great God Himself when He came down couldn't please everybody.

Sibby. I am thinking you were talking of some friend, ma'am, might be apt to be coming to your aid.

The Jackdaw

Mrs. Broderick. Well able he is to do it if the Lord would but put it in his mind. Isn't it a strange thing the goods of this world to shut up the heart of a brother from his own, the same as Esau and Jacob, and he having a good farm of land in the County Limerick. It is what I heard that in that place, the grass does be as thick as grease.

Sibby. I suppose, ma'am, you wrote giving him an account of your case ?

Mrs. Broderick. Sure Mr. Nestor, the dear man, has his fingers wore away writing for me, and I telling him all he had or had not to say, At Christmas I wrote, and at Little Christmas, and at St. Brigit's Day, and on the Feast of St. Patrick, and after that again such time as I had news of the summons being about to be served. And you may ask Mrs. Delane at the Post Office am I telling any lie saying I got no word or answer at all. . . . It's long since I saw him, but it is the way he used to be, his eyes on kippeens and some way suspicious in his heart ; a dark weighty tempered man.

Sibby. A person to be crabbed and he young, it is not likely he will grow kind at the latter end.

Tommy Nally. That is no less than true now.

The Jackdaw

There are crabbed people and suspicious people to be met with in every place. It is much that I got a pass from the Workhouse this day, the Master making sure when I asked it that I had in my pocket the means of getting drink.

Mrs. Broderick. It would maybe be best to go join you in the Workhouse, Tommy Nally, when I am out of this, than to go walking the world from end to end.

Tommy Nally. Ah, don't be saying that, ma'am; sure you couldn't be happy within those walls if you had the whole world. Clean outside, but very hard within. No rank but all mixed together, the good, the middling and the bad, the well reared and the rough.

Mrs. Broderick. Sure I'm not asking to go in it. You could never be as stiff in any place as in any sort of little cabin of your own.

Tommy Nally. The tea boiled in a boiler, you should close your eyes drinking it, and ne'er a bit of sugar hardly in it at all. And our curses on them that boil the eggs too hard! What use is an egg that is hard to any person on earth? And as to the dinner, what way would a tasty person eat it not having a knife or a fork?

Mrs. Broderick. That I may live to be in no one's way, but to have some little corner of my own!

Tommy Nally. And to come to your end in it, ma'am! If you were the Lady Mayor herself you'd be brought out to the deadhouse if it was ten o'clock at night, and not a wash unless it was just a Scotch lick, and nobody to wake you at all!

Mrs. Broderick. I will not go in it! I would sooner make any shift and die by the side of the wall. Sure heaven is the best place, heaven and this world we're in now!

Sibby. Don't be giving up now, ma'am. Here is Mr. Nestor coming, and if anyone will give you an advice he is the one will do it. Why wouldn't he, he being, as he is, an educated man, and such a great one to be reading books.

Mrs. Broderick. So he is too, and keeps it in his mind after. It's a wonder to me a man that does be reading to keep any memory at all.

Nally. It's easy for him to carry things light, and his pension paid regular at springtime and harvest.

(Nestor comes in reading "Tit-Bits.")

Nestor. There was a servant girl in Austria cut off her finger slicing cabbage. . . .

All. The poor thing!

Nestor. And her master stuck it on again with glue. That now was a very foolish thing to do. What use would a finger be stuck with glue that might melt off at any time, and she to be stirring the pot.

The Jackdaw

Sibby. That is true indeed.

Nestor. Now, if I myself had been there, it is what I would have advised . . .

Sibby. That's what I was saying, Mr. Nestor. It is you are the grand adviser. What now will you say to poor Mrs. Broderick that has a summons out against her this day for up to ten pounds.

Nestor. It is what I am often saying, it is a very foolish thing to be getting into debt.

Mrs. Broderick. Sure what way could I help it? It's a very done-up town to be striving to make a living in.

Nestor. It would be a right thing to be showing a good example.

Mrs. Broderick. They would want that indeed. There are more die with debts on them in this place than die free from debt.

Nestor. Many a poor soul has had to suffer from the weight of the debts on him, finding no rest or peace after death.

Sibby. The Magistrates are gone into the Courthouse, Mrs. Broderick. Why now wouldn't you go up to the bank and ask would the manager advance you a loan.

Mrs. Broderick. It is likely he would not do it

The Jackdaw

105

But maybe it's as good for me go as to be sitting here waiting for the end.

(Puts on hat and shawl.)

Nestor. I now will take charge of the shop for you, Mrs. Broderick.

Mrs. Broderick. It's little call there'll be to it. The time a person is sunk that's the time the custom will go from her. (She goes out.)

Nally. I'll be taking a ramble into the Court to see what are the lads doing. (Goes out.)

Sibby (following them). I might chance some customers there myself.

(Goes out calling—oranges, good oranges.)

Nestor (taking a paper from his pocket, sitting down and beginning to read). "Romantic elopement in high life. A young lady at Aberdeen, Missouri, U.S.A., having been left by her father an immense fortune. . . ."

(Stops to wipe his spectacles, puts them on again and looks for place, which he has lost.)

Cooney puts his head in at door and draws it out again.

Nestor. Come in, come in!

Cooney (coming in cautiously and looking round). Whose house now might this be?

Nestor. To the Widow Broderick it belongs. She is out in the town presently.

Cooney. I saw her name up over the door.

The Jackdaw

Nestor. On business of her own she is gone. It is I am minding the place for her.

Cooney. So I see. I suppose now you have good cause to be minding it ?

Nestor. It would be a pity any of her goods to go to loss.

Cooney. I suppose so. Is it to auction them you will or to sell them in bulk ?

Nestor. Not at all. I can sell you any article you will require.

Cooney. It would be no profit to herself now, I suppose, if you did ?

Nestor. What do you mean saying that ? Do you think I would defraud her from her due in anything I would sell for her at all ?

Cooney. You are not the bailiff so ?

Nestor. Not at all. I wonder any person to take me for a bailiff !

Cooney. You are maybe one of the creditors ?

Nestor. I am not. I ain not a man to have a debt upon me to any person on earth.

Cooney. I wonder what it is you are at so, if you have no claim on the goods. Is it any harm now to ask what's this your name is ?

Nestor. One Joseph Nestor I am, there are few in the district but know me. Indeed they all have a great opinion of me. Travelled I did in the army, and attended school and I young, and slept in the one bed with two boys that were learning Greek.

Cooney. What way now can I be rightly sure that you are Joseph Nestor.

Nestor (pulling out envelope). There is my pension docket. You will maybe believe that.

Cooney (examining it). I suppose you may be him so. I saw your name often before this.

Nestor. Did you now. I suppose it may have travelled a good distance.

Cooney. It travelled as far as myself anyway at the bottom of letters that were written asking relief for the owner of this house.

Nestor. I suppose you are her brother so, Michael Cooney ?

Cooney. If I am, there are some questions that I want to put and to get answers to before my mind will be satisfied. Tell me this now. Is it a fact Mary Broderick to be living at all ?

Nestor. What would make you think her not to be living and she sending letters to you through the post ?

Cooney. I was saying to myself with myself, there was maybe some other one personating her and asking me to send relief for their own ends.

• Nestor. I am in no want of any relief. That is a queer thing to say and a very queer thing.

The Jackdaw

There are many worse off than myself, the Lord be praised !

Cooney. Don't be so quick now starting up to take offence. It is hard to believe the half the things you hear or that will be told to you.

Nestor. That may be so indeed ; unless it is things that would be printed on the papers. But I would think you might trust one of your own blood.

Cooney. I might or I might not. I had it in my mind this long time to come hither and to look around for myself. There are seven generations of the Cooneys trusted nobody living or dead.

Nestor. Indeed I was reading in some history of one Ulysses that came back from a journey and sent no word before him but slipped in unknown to all but the house dog to see was his wife minding the place, or was she, as she was, scattering his means.

Cooney. So she would be too. If Mary Broderick is in need of relief I will relieve her, but if she is not, I will bring away what I brought with me to its own place again.

Nestor. Sure here is the summons. You can read that, and if you will look out the door you can see by the stir the Magistrates are sitting in the Court. It is a great welcome she will have before you, and the relief coming at the very nick of time.

Cooney. It is too good a welcome she will give me I am thinking. It is what I am in dread of now, if she thinks I brought her the money so soft and so easy, she will never be leaving me alone, but dragging all I have out of me by little and little.

Nestor. Maybe you might let her have but the lend of it.

Cooney. Where's the use of calling it a lend when I may be sure I never will see it again? It might be as well for me to earn the value of a charity.

Nestor. You might do that and not repent of it.

Cooney. It is likely I'll be annoyed with her to the end of my lifetime if she knows I have as much as that to part with. It might be she would be following me to Limerick.

Nestor. Wait now a minute till I will give you an advice.

Cooney. It is likely my own advice is the best. Look over your own shoulder and do the thing you think right. How can any other person know the reasons I have in my mind?

Nestor. I will know what is in your mind if you will tell it to me.

The Jackdaw

Cooney. It would suit me best, she to get the money and not to know at the present time where did it come from. The next time she will write wanting help from me, I will task her with it and ask her to give me an account.

Nestor. That now would take a great deal of strategy. . . . Wait now till I think. . . . I have it in my mind I was reading in a penny novel . . . no but on the "Gael" . . . about a boy of Kilbecanty that saved his old sweetheart from being evicted.

Cooney. I never heard my sister had any old sweetheart.

Nestor. It was playing Twenty-five he did it. Played with the husband he did, letting him win up to fifty pounds.

Cooney. Mary Broderick was no cardplayer. And if she was itself she would know me. And it's not fifty pounds I am going to leave with her, or twenty pounds, or a penny more than is needful to free her from the summons to-day.

Nestor (excited). I will make up a plan! I am sure I will think of a good one. It is given in to me there is no person so good at making up a plan as myself on this side of the world, not on this side of the world! I will manage all. Leave here what you have for her ~~before~~ she will come in. I will give it to her in some secret way.

The Jackdaw

111

Cooney. I don't know. I will not give it to you before I will get a receipt for it . . . and I'll not leave the town till I'll see did she get it straight and fair. Into the Court I'll go to see her paying it.

(Sits down and writes out receipt.)

Nestor. I was reading on "Home Chat" about a woman put a note for five pounds into her son's prayer book and he going a voyage. And when he came back and was in the church with her it fell out, he never having turned a leaf of the book at all.

Cooney. Let you sign this and you may put it in the prayer book so long as she will get it safe.

(Nestor signs. Cooney looks suspiciously at signature and compares it with a letter and then gives notes.)

Nestor (signing). Joseph Nestor.

Cooney. Let me see now is it the same handwriting I used to be getting on the letters. It is. I have the notes here.

Nestor. Wait now till I see is there a prayer book. . . . (Looks on shelf.) Treacle, castor oil, marmalade. . . . I see no books at all.

Cooney. Hurry on now, she will be coming in and finding me.

Nestor. Here is what will do as well. . . .

The Jackdaw

"Old Moore's Almanac." I will put it here between the leaves. I will ask her the prophecy for the month. You can come back here after she finding it.

Cooney. Amn't I after telling you I wouldn't wish her to have sight of me here at all. What are you at now, I wonder, saying that. I will take my own way to know does she pay the money. It is not my intention to be made a fool of.

Nestor. You will be satisfied and well satisfied. Let me see now where are the predictions for the month. (Reads.) "The angry appearance of Scorpio and the position of the pale Venus and Jupiter presage much danger for England. The heretofore obsequious Orangemen will refuse to respond to the tocsin of landlordism. The scales are beginning to fall from their eyes."

(Mrs. Broderick comes in without his noticing her. She gives a groan. He drops book and stuffs notes into his pocket.)

Mrs. Broderick. Here I am back again and no addition to me since I went.

Nestor. You gave me a start coming in so noiseless.

Mrs. Broderick. It is time for me go to the Court, and I give you my word I'd be better pleased going to my burying at the Seven Churches. A nice slab I have there waiting for me, though the man that put it over me I never saw him at all, and he a far off cousin of my own.

Nestor. Who knows now, Mrs. Broderick, but things might turn out better than you think.

Mrs. Broderick. What way could they turn out better between this and one o'clock ?

Nestor (scratching his head). I suppose now you wouldn't care to play a game of Twenty-five ?

Mrs. Broderick. I am surprised at you, Mr. Nestor, asking me to go cardplaying on such a day and at such an hour as this.

Nestor. I wonder might some person come in and give an order for ten pounds worth of the stock ?

Mrs. Broderick. Much good it would do me. Sure I have the most of it on credit.

Nestor. Well there is no knowing. Some well to do person now passing the street might have seen you and taken a liking to you and be willing to make an advance or a loan.

Mrs. Broderick. Ah, who would be taking a liking to me as they might to a young girl in her bloom.

Nestor. Oh, it's a sort of thing might happen.

The Jackdaw

Sure age didn't catch on to you yet ; you are clean and fresh and sound. What's this I was reading in "Answers." (Looks at it.)
" Romantic elopement . . . "

Mrs. Broderick. I know of no one would be thinking of me for a wife . . . unless it might be yourself, Mr. Nestor. . . .

Nestor (jumping up and speaking fast and running finger up and down paper). " Performance of Dick Whittington." . . . There now, there is a story that I read in my reading, it was called Whittington and the Cat. It was the cat led to his fortune. There might some person take a fancy to your cat. . . .

Mrs. Broderick. Ah, let you have done now. I have no cat this good while. I banished it on the head of it threatening the jackdaw

Nestor. The jackdaw ?

Mrs. Broderick (fetches cage from inner room). Sure I reared it since the time it fell down the chimney and I going into my bed. It is often you should have seen it, in or out of its cage. Hero his name is. Come out now Hero.

(Opens cage.)

Nestor (slapping his side). That is it . . . that's the very thing. Listen to me now, Mrs. Broderick, there are some might give a good price for that bird (Sitting down to the work.)

It chances now there is a friend of mine in South Africa. A mine owner he is . . . very rich . . . but it is down in the mine he has to live by reason of the Kaffirs . . . it is hard to keep a watch upon them in the half dark, they being black.

Mrs. Broderick. I suppose. . . .

Nestor. He does be lonesome now and again, and he is longing for a bird to put him in mind of old Ireland . . . but he is in dread it would die in the darkness . . . and it came to his mind that it is a custom with jackdaws to be living in chimneys, and that if any birds would bear the confinement it is they that should do it.

Mrs. Broderick. And is it to buy jackdaws he is going ?

Nestor. Isn't that what I am coming to. (He pulls out notes.) Here now is ten pounds I have to lay out for him. Take them now and good luck go with them, and give me the bird.

Mrs. Broderick. Notes is it ? Is it waking or dreaming I am and I standing up on the floor ?

Nestor. Good notes and ten of them. Look at them ! National Bank they are. . . . Count them now, according to your fingers, and see did I tell any lie.

Mrs. Broderick (counting). They are in it sure enough . . . so long as they are good ones and I not made a hare of before the magistrates.

The Jackdaw

Nestor. Go out now to the Court and show them to Timothy Ward, and see does he say are they good. Pay them over then, and its likely you will be let off the costs.

Mrs. Broderick (taking shawl). I will go, I will go. Well you are a great man and a kind man, Joseph Nestor, and that you may live a thousand years for this good deed.

Nestor. Look here now, ma'am, I would'n't wish you to be mentioning my name in this business or saying I had any hand in it at all.

Mrs. Broderick. I will not so long as it's not pleasing to you. Well, it is yourself took a great load off me this day! (She goes out.)

Nestor (calling after her). I might as well be putting the jackdaw back into the cage to be ready for the journey. (Comes into shop.) • I hope now he will be well treated by the sailors and he travelling over the sea . . . Where is he now. . . . (Chirrup.) Here now, come here to me, what's this your name is . . . Nero! Nero! (Makes pounces behind counter.) Ah, bad manners to you is it under the counter you are gone!

(Lies flat on the floor chirruping and calling,
Nero! Nero! Nally comes in and watches him curiously.

Nally. Is it catching blackbeetles you are, Mr. Nestor? Where are they and I will give you a hand. . . .

Nestor (getting up annoyed). It's that bird I was striving to catch a hold of for to put him back in the cage.

Tommy Nally (making a pounce). There he is now. (Puts bird in cage.) Wait now till I'll fasten the gate.

Nestor. Just putting everything straight and handy for the widow woman I am before she will come back from the settlement she is making in the Court.

Nally. What way will she be able to do that?

Nestor. I gave her advice. A thought I had, something that came from my reading. (Taps paper.) Education and reading and going in the army through the kingdoms of the world; that is what fits a man now to be giving out advice.

Tommy. Indeed, it's good for them to have you, all the poor ignorant people of this town.

Cooney (coming in hurriedly and knocking against Nally as he goes out). What, now, would you say to be the best nesting place in this town. Nests of jackdaws I should say.

Nestor. There is the old mill should be a good place. To the west of the station it is. Chimneys there are in it. Middling high they are

The Jackdaw

Wait now till I'll tell you of the great plan I made up.

Cooney. What are you asking for those rakes in the corner? It's no matter, I'll take one on credit, or maybe it is only the lend of it I'll take. . . . I'll be coming back immediately.

(He goes out with rake.)

Sibby (coming in excitedly). If you went bird-catching, Mr. Nestor, tell me what way would you go doing it?

Nestor. It is not long since I was reading some account of that . . . lads that made a trade of it . . . nets they had and they used to be spreading them in the swamps where the plover do be feeding. . . .

Sibby. Ah, sure where's the use of a plover!

Nestor. And snares they had for putting along the drains where the snipe do be picking up worms. . . . But if I myself saw any person going after things of the sort, it is what I would advise them to stick to the net.

Sibby. What now is the price of that net in the corner?

Nestor (taking it down). It is but a little bag that is, suitable for carrying small articles; it would become your oranges well. Twopence I believe, Sibby, is what I should charge you for that.

The Jackdaw

Sibby (taking money out of handkerchief). Give it to me so ! Here I'll get the start of you, Timothy Ward, anyway.

(She takes it and goes out, almost overturning Timothy Ward, who is rushing in.)

Nestor. Well, Timothy, did you see the Widow Broderick in the Court ?

Ward. I did see her. It is in it she is, now, looking as content as in the coffin, and she paying her debt.

Nestor. Did she give you any account of herself ?

Ward. She did to be sure, and to the whole Court ; but look here now I have no time to be talking. I have to be back there when the magistrates will have their lunch taken. Now you being so clever a man, Mr. Nestor, what would you say is the surest way to go catching birds ?

Nestor. It is a strange thing now I was asked the same question not three minutes ago. I was just searching my mind. It seems to me I have read in some place it is a very good way to go calling to them with calls ; made for the purpose they are. You have but to sit under a tree or whatever place they may perch and to whistle suppose now it might be for a curlew. . . .

(Whistles.)

The Jackdaw

Timothy Ward. Are there any of those calls in the shop?

Nestor. I would not say there are any made for the purpose, but there might be something might answer you all the same. Let me see now. . . .

(Gets down a box of musical toys and turns them over.)

Ward. Is there anything now has a sound like the croaky screech of a jackdaw?

Nestor. Here now is what we used to be calling a corncrake . . . (Turns it.) Corncrake, corncrake . . . but it seems to me now that to give it but the one creak, this way . . . it is much like what you would hear in the chimney at the time of the making of the nests

Ward. Give it here to me!

(Puts a penny on counter and runs out.)

Tommy Nally (coming in shaking with excitement). For the love of God, Mr. Nestor, will you give me that live-trap on credit!

Nestor. A trap? Sure there is no temptation for rats to be settling themselves in the workhouse.

Nally. Or a snare itself . . . or any sort of thing that would make the makings of a crib.

Nestor. What would you want, I wonder, going out fowling with a crib?

The Jackdaw

121

Nally. Why wouldn't I want it? Why wouldn't I have leave to catch a bird the same as every other one?

Nestor. And what would the likes of you be wanting with a bird?

Nally. What would I want with it, is it? Why wouldn't I be getting my own ten pounds?

Nestor. Heaven help your poor head this day!

Nally. Why wouldn't I get it the same as Mrs. Broderick got it?

Nestor. Well, listen to me now. You will not get it.

Nally. Sure that man is buying them will have no objection they to come from one more than another.

Nestor. Don't be arguing now. It is a queer thing for you, Tommy Nally, to be arguing with a man like myself.

Nally. Think now all the good it would do me ten pound to be put in my hand! It is not you should be begrudging it to me, Mr. Nestor. Sure it would be a relief upon the rates.

Nestor. I tell you you will not get ten pound, or any pound at all. Can't you give attention to what I say.

Nally. If I had but the price of the trap you wouldn't refuse it to me. Well, isn't there great hardship upon a man to be bet up and to have no credit in the town at all.

Nestor (exasperated, and giving him the cage). Look here now, I have a right to turn you out into the street. But, as you are silly like and with no great share of wits, I will make you a present of this bird till you try what will you get for it, and till you see will you get as much as will cover its diet for one day only. Go out now looking for 'customers and maybe you will believe what I say.

Nally (seizing it). That you may be doing the same thing this day fifty years! My fortune's made now! (Goes out with cage.)

Nestor (sitting down). My joy go with you, but I'm bothered with the whole of you. Everyone expecting me to do their business and to manage their affairs. That is the drawback of being an educated man!

(Takes up paper to read.)

Mrs. Broderick (coming in). I declare I'm as comforted as Job coming free into the house from the Court!

Nestor. Well, indeed, ma'am, I am well satisfied to be able to do what I did for you, and for my friend from Africa as well, giving him so fine and so handsome a bird.

Mrs. Broderick. Sure Finn himself that chewed his thumb had not your wisdom, or King Solomon that kept order over his kingdom and his own seven hundred wives. There is neither of them could be put beside you for settling the business of any person at all.

(Sibby comes in holding up her netted bag.

Nestor. What is it you have there, Sibby ?

Sibby. Look at them here, look at them here. . . . I wasn't long getting them. Warm they are yet ; they will take no injury.

Mrs. Broderick. What are they at all ?

Sibby. It is eggs they are . . . look at them. Jackdaws' eggs.

Nestor (suspiciously). And what call have you now to be bringing in jackdaws' eggs ?

Sibby. Is it ten pound apiece I will get for them do you think, or is it but ten pound I will get for the whole of them ?

Nestor. Is it drink, or is it tea, or is it some change that is come upon the world that is fitting the people of this place for the asylum in Ballinasloe ?

Sibby. I know of a good clocking hen. I will put the eggs under her. . . . I will rear them when they'll be hatched out.

Nestor. I suppose now, Mrs. Broderick, you were belling the case through the town ?

Mrs. Broderick. I did not, but to the Magistrates upon the bench that I told it out of respect to, and I never mentioned your name in it at all.

The Jackdaw

Sibby. Tell me now, Mrs. Broderick, who have I to apply to ?

Mrs. Broderick. What is it you are wanting to apply about ?

Sibby. Will you tell me where is the man that is after buying your jackdaw ?

Mrs. Broderick (looking at Nestor). What's that ? Where is he, is it ?

Nestor (making signs of silence). How would you know where he is ? It is not in a broken little town of this sort such a man would be stopping, and he having his business finished.

Sibby. Sure he will have to be coming back here for the bird. I will stop till I'll see him drawing near.

Nestor. It is more likely he will get it consigned to the shipping agent. Mind what I say now, it is best not be speaking of him at all.

(Timothy Ward comes in triumphantly, croaking his toy. He has a bird in his hand.)

Ward. I chanced on a starling. It was not with this I tempted him, but a little chap that had him in a crib. Would you say now, Mr. Nestor, would that do as well as a jackdaw ?

Look now, it's as handsome every bit as the other. And anyway it is likely they will both die before they will reach to their journey's end.

Nestor (lifting up his hands). "Of all the foolishness that ever came upon the world !

Ward. Hurry on now, Mrs. Broderick, tell me where will I bring it to the buyer you were speaking of. He is fluttering that hard it is much if I can keep him in my hand. Is it at Noonan's Royal Hotel he is or is it at Mack's ?

Nestor (shaking his head threateningly). How can you tell that and you not knowing it yourself ?

Ward. Sure you have a right to know what way did he go, and he after going out of this.

Mrs. Broderick (her eyes apprehensively on Nestor). Ah, sure, my mind was tattered on me. I couldn't know did he go east or west. Standing here in this place I was, like a ghost that got a knock upon its head.

Ward. If he is coming back for the bird it is here he will be coming, and if it is to be sent after him it is likely you will have his address.

Mrs. Broderick. So I should, too, I suppose. Where now did I put it ? (She looks to Nestor for orders, but cannot understand his signs, and turns out pocket.) That's my specs . . . that's the key of the box . . . that's a bit of root liquorice. . . . Where now at all could I have left down that address ?

Ward. There has no train left since he was here. Sure what does it matter so long as he did not go out of this. I'll bring this bird to the railway. Tell me what sort was he till I'll know him.

Mrs. Broderick (still looking at Nestor). Well, he was middling tall . . . not very gross . . . about the figure now of Mr. Nestor.

Ward. What aged man was he ?

Mrs. Broderick. I suppose up to sixty years. About the one age, you'd say, with Mr. Nestor.

Ward. Give me some better account now; it is hardly I would make him out by that.

Mrs. Broderick. A grey beard he has hanging down. . . and a bald poll, and grey hair like a fringe around it . . . just for all the world like Mr. Nestor !

Nestor (jumping up). There is nothing so disagreeable in the whole world as a woman that has too much talk.

Mrs. Broderick. Well, let me alone. Where's the use of them all picking at me to say where did I get the money when I am under orders not to tell it ?

Ward. Under orders ?

Mrs. Broderick. I am, and strong orders.

Ward. Whose orders are those ?

Mrs. Broderick. What's that to you, I ask you?

Ward. Isn't it a pity now a woman to be so unneighbourly and she after getting profit for herself ?

Mrs. Broderick. Look now, Mr. Nestor, the way they are going on at me, and you saying no word for me at all.

Ward. How would he say any word when he hasn't it to say ? The only word could be said by anyone is that you are a mean grasping person, gathering what you can for your own profit and keeping yourself so close and so compact. It is back to the Court I am going, and it's no good friend I'll be to you from this out, Mrs. Broderick !

Mrs. Broderick. Amn't I telling you I was bidden not to tell ?

Sibby. You were. And is it likely it was you yourself bid yourself and gave you that advice, Mrs. Broderick. It is what I think the bird was never bought at all. It is in some other way she got the money. Maybe in a way she does not like to be talking of. Light weights, light fingers ! Let us go away so and leave her, herself and her money and her orders ! (Timothy Ward goes out, but Sibby stops at door.) And much good may they do her.

The Jackdaw

Mrs. Broderick. Listen to that, Mr. Nestor! Will you be listening to that, when one word from yourself would clear my character! I leave it now between you and the hearers. Why would I be questioned this way and that way, the same as if I was on the green table before the judges? You have my heart broke between you. It's best for me to heat the kettle and wet a drop of tea.

(Goes to inner room.)

Sibby. Tell us the truth now, Mr. Nestor, if you know anything at all about it.

Nestor. I know everything about it. It was to myself the notes were handed in the first place. I am willing to take my oath to you on that. It was a stranger, I said, came in.

Sibby. I wish I could see him and know him if I did see him.

Nestor. It is likely you would know a man of that sort if you did see him, Sibby Fahy. It is likely you never saw a man yet that owns riches would buy up the half of this town.

Sibby. It is not always them that has the most that makes the most show. But it is likely he will have a good dark suit anyway, and shining boots, and a gold chain hanging over his chest.

Nestor (sarcastically). He will, and gold rings and pins the same as the King of France or of Spain.

The Jackdaw

(Enter Cooney, hatless, streaked with soot and lime, speechless but triumphant. He holds up a nest with nestlings.)

Nestor. What has happened you, Mr. Cooney, at all ?

Cooney. Look now, what I have got !

Nestor. A nest, is it ?

Cooney. Three young ones in it !

Nestor (faintly). Is it what you are going to say they are jackdaws !

Cooney. I followed your directions. . .

Nestor. How do you make that out ?

Cooney. You said the mill chimneys were full of them. . . .

Nestor. What has that to do with it ?

Cooney. I left my rake after me broken in the loft . . . my hat went away in the millrace . . . I tore my coat on the stones . . . there has mortar got into my eye. . . .

Nestor. The Lord bless and save us !

Cooney. But there is no man can say I did not bring back the birds, sound and living and in good health. Look now, the open mouths of them !—(All gather round.) Three of them safe and living. . . . I lost one climbing the wall, . . . Where now is the man is going to buy them ?

The Jackdaw

Sibby (pointing at Nestor). It is he that can tell you that.

Cooney. Make no delay bringing me to him. I'm in dread they might die on me first Nestor. You should know well that no one is buying them.

Sibby. No one ! Sure it was you yourself told us that there was !

Nestor. If I did itself there is no such a man.

Sibby. It's not above two minutes he was telling of the rings and the pins he wore.

Nestor. He never was in it at all.

Cooney. What plan is he making up now to defraud me and to rob me ?

Sibby. Question him yourself, and you will see what will he say.

Cooney. How can I ask questions of a man that is telling lies ?

Nestor. I am telling no lies. I am well able to answer you and to tell you the truth.

Cooney. Tell me where is the man that will give me cash for these birds, the same as he gave it to the woman of this house ?

Sibby. That's it, that is it. Let him tell it out now.

Cooney. Will you have me ask it as often as the hairs of my head ? If I get vexed I will make you answer me.

The Jackdaw

131

Nestor. It seems to me to have set fire to a rick, but I am well able to quench it after. There is no man in South Africa, or that came from South Africa, or that ever owned a mine there at all. Where is the man bought the bird, are you asking? There he is standing among us on this floor. (Points to Cooney.) That is himself, the very man!

Cooney (advancing a step). What is that you are saying?

Nestor. I say that no one came in here but yourself.

Cooney. Did he say or not say there was a rich man came in?

Sibby. He did, surely.

Nestor. To make up a plan. . . .

Cooney. I know well you have made up a plan.

Nestor. To give it unknownst. . . .

Cooney. It is to keep it unknownst you are wanting!

Nestor. The way she would not suspect. . . .

Cooney. It is I myself suspect and have cause to suspect! Give me back my own ten pounds and I'll be satisfied.

Nestor. What way can I give it back?

Cooney. The same way as you took it, in the palm of your hand.

Nestor. Sure it is paid away and spent. . . .

The Jackdaw

Cooney. If it is you'll repay it ! I know as well as if I was inside you you are striving to make me your prey ! But I'll sober you ! It is into the Court I will drag you, and as far as the gaol !

Nestor. I tell you I gave it to the widow woman. . . .

(Mrs. Broderick comes in.)

Cooney. Let her say now did you.

Mrs. Broderick. What is it at all ? What is happening ? Joseph Nestor threatened by a tinker or a tramp !

Nestor. I would think better of his behaviour if he was a tinker or a tramp.

Mrs. Broderick. He has drink taken so. Isn't drink the terrible tempter, a man to see flames and punishment upon the one side and drink upon the other, and to turn his face towards the drink !

Cooney. Will you stop your chat, Mary Broderick, till I will drag the truth out of this traitor ?

Mrs. Broderick. Who is that calling me by my name ? Och ! Is it Micael Cooney is in it ? Michael Cooney, my brother ! O Michael, what will they think of you coming into the town and much like a rag on a stick would be scaring in the wheatfield through the day ?

Cooney (pointing at Nestor). It was going up in the mill I destroyed myself, following the directions of that ruffian!

Mrs. Broderick. And what call has a man that has drink taken to go climbing up a loft in a mill? A crooked mind you had always, and that's a sort of person drink doesn't suit.

Cooney. I tell you I didn't take a glass over a counter this ten year.

Mrs. Broderick. You would do well to go learn behaviour from Mr. Nestor.

Cooney. The man that has me plundered and robbed! Tell me this now, if you can tell it. Did you find any pound notes in "Old Moore's Almanac"?

Mrs. Broderick. I did not to be sure, or in any other place.

Nestor. She came in at the door and I striving to put them into the book.

Cooney. Look are they in it now, and I will say he is not tricky, but honest.

Nestor. You needn't be looking. . . .

Mrs. Broderick (turning over the leaves). Ne'er a thing at all in it but the things that will or will not happen, and the days of the changes of the moon.

Cooney (seizing and shaking it). Look at that now ! (To Nestor.) Will you believe me now telling you that you are a rogue ?

The Jackdaw

Nestor. Will you listen to me, ma'am.

Cooney. No, but listen to myself. I brought the money to you.

Nestor. If he did he wouldn't trust you with it, ma'am.

Cooney. I intended it for your relief

Nestor. In dread he was you would go follow him to Limerick.

Mrs. Broderick. It is not likely I would be following the like of him to Limerick, a man that left me to the charity of strangers from Africa !

Cooney. I gave the money to him. . . .

Nestor. And I gave it to yourself paying for the jackdaw. Are you satisfied now, Mary Broderick ?

Mrs. Broderick. Satisfied, is it ? It would be a queer thing indeed I to be satisfied. My brother to be spending money on birds, and his sister with a summons on her head. Michael Cooney to be passing himself off as a mine-owner, and I myself being the way I am !

Cooney. What would I want doing that ? I tell you I ask no birds, black, blue or white !

Mrs. Broderick. I wonder at you now saying that, and you with that clutch on your arm !

(Cooney indignantly flings away nest.) Searching out jackdaws and his sister without the price of a needle in the house ! I tell you, Michael Cooney, it is yourself will be wandering after your burying, naked and perishing, through winds and through frosts, in satisfaction for the way you went wasting your money and your means on such vanities, and she that was reared on the one floor with you going knocking at the Workhouse door ! What good will jackdaws be to you that time ?

Cooney. It is what I would wish to know, what scheme are the whole of you at ? It is long till I will trust any one but my own eyes again in the whole of the living world.

(She wipes her eyes indignantly. Tommy Nally rushes in the bird and cage still in his hands.)

Nally. Where is the bird buyer ? It is here he is said to be. It is well for me get here the first. It is the whole of the town will be here within half an hour ; they have put a great scatter on themselves hunting and searching in every place, but I am the first !

Nestor. What is it you are talking about ?

Nally. Not a house in the whole street but is deserted. It is much if the Magistrates themselves didn't quit the bench for the pursuit, the way Tim Ward quitted the place he had a right to be !

The Jackdaw

Nestor. It is some curse in the air, or some scourge?

Nally. Birds they are getting by the score ! Old and young ! Where is the bird-buyer ? Who is it now will give me my price ?

(He holds up the cage.)

Cooney. There is surely some root for all this. There must be some buyer after all. It's to keep him to themselves they are wanting. (Goes to door.) But I'll get my own profit in spite of them.

(He goes outside door, looking up and down the street.)

Mrs. Broderick. Look at what Tommy Nally has. That's my bird.

Nally. It is not, it's my own !

Mrs. Broderick. That is my cage !

Nally. It is not, it is mine !

Mrs. Broderick. Wouldn't I know my own cage and my own bird ? Don't be telling lies that way !

Nally. It is no lie I am telling. The bird and the cage were made a present to me.

Mrs. Broderick. Who would make a present to you of the things that belong to myself ?

Nally. It was Mr. Nestor gave them to me.

Mrs. Broderick. Do you hear what he says, Joseph Nestor? What call have you to be giving a present of my bird?

Nestor. And wasn't I after buying it from you?

Mrs. Broderick. If you were it was not for yourself you bought it, but for the poor man in South Africa you bought it, and you defrauding him now, giving it away to a man has no claim to it at all. Well, now, isn't it hard for any man to find a person he can trust?

Nestor. Didn't you hear me saying I bought it for no person at all?

Mrs. Broderick. Give it up now, Tommy Nally, or I'll have you in gaol on the head of it.

Nally. Oh, you wouldn't do such a thing, ma'am, I am sure!

Mrs. Broderick. Indeed and I will, and have you on the treadmill for a thief.

Nally. Oh, oh, oh, look now, Mr. Nestor, the way you have made me a thief and to be lodged in the gaol!

Nestor. I wish to God you were lodged in it, and we would have less annoyance in this place!

Nally. Oh, that is a terrible thing for you to be saying! Sure the poorhouse itself is better than the gaol! The nuns preparing you for heaven and the Mass every morning of your life. . . .

Nestor. If you go on with your talk and your arguments it's to gaol you will surely go.

Nally. Milk of a Wednesday and a Friday, the potatoes steamed very good. . . . It's the skins of the potatoes they were telling me you do have to be eating in the gaol. It is what I am thinking, Mr. Nestor, that bird will lie heavy on you at the last !

Nestor (seizing cage and letting the bird out of the door). Bad cess and a bad end to it, and that I may never see it or hear of it again !

Mrs. Broderick. Look what he is after doing ! Get it back for me ! Give it here into my hands I say ! Why wouldn't I sell it secondly to the buyer and he to be coming to the door ? It is in my own pocket I will keep the price of it that time !

Nally. It would have been as good you to have left it with me as to be sending itself and the worth of it up into the skies !

Mrs. Broderick (taking Nestor's arm). Get it back for me I tell you ! There it is above in the ash tree, and it flapping its wings on a bough !

Nestor. Give me the cage, if that will content you, and I will strive to entice it to come in.

Cooney (coming in). Everyone running this way and that way. It is for birds they are looking sure enough. Why now would they go through such hardship if there was not a demand in some place?

Nestor (pushing him away). Let me go now before that bird will quit the branch where it is.

Cooney (seizing hold of him). Is it striving to catch a bird for yourself you are now?

Nestor. Let me pass if you please. I have nothing to say to you at all.

Cooney. Laying down to me they were worth nothing! I knew well you had made up some plan! The grand adviser is it! It is to yourself you gave good advice that time!

Nestor. Let me out I tell you before that uproar you are making will drive it from its perch on the tree.

Cooney. Is it to rob me of my own money you did and to be keeping me out of the money I earned along with it!

(Threatens Nestor with "Moore's Almanac," which he has picked up.)

Sibby. Take care would there be murder done in this place!

(She seizes Nestor, Mrs. Broderick seizes Cooney. Tommy Nally wrings his hands.)

The Jackdaw

Nestor. Tommy Nally, will you kindly go and call for the police.

Cooney. Is it into a den of wild beasts I am come that must go calling out for the police ?

Nestor. A very unmannerly person indeed !

Cooney. Everyone thinking to take advantage of me and to make their own trap for my ruin.

Nestor. I don't know what cause has he at all to have taken any umbrage against me.

Cooney. You that had your eye on my notes from the first like a goat in a cabbage garden !

Nestor. Coming with a gift in the one hand and holding a dagger in the other !

Cooney. If you say that again I will break your collar bone !

Nestor. O, but you are the terrible wicked man !

Cooney. I'll squeeze satisfaction out of you if I had to hang for it ! I will be well satisfied if I'll kill you !

(Flings " Moore's Almanac " at him.)

Nestor (throwing his bundle of newspapers). Oh, good jewel !

Ward (coming in hastily). Whist the whole of you, I tell you ! The Magistrates are coming to the door ! (Comes in and shuts it after him.)

The Jackdaw

141

Mrs. Broderick. The Lord be between us and harm! What made them go quit the Court?

Ward. The whole of the witnesses and of the prosecution made off bird-catching. The Magistrates sent to invite the great mine owner to go lunch at Noonan's with themselves.

Cooney. Horses of their own to stick him with they have. I wouldn't doubt them at all.

Ward. He could not be found in any place. They are informed he was never seen leaving this house. They are coming to make an investigation.

Nestor. Don't be anyway uneasy. I will explain the whole case.

Ward. The police along with them. . . .

Cooney. Is the whole of this district turned into a trap?

Ward. It is what they are thinking, that the stranger was made away with for his gold!

Cooney. And if he was, as sure as you are living, it was done by that blackguard there!

(Points at Nestor.)

Ward. If he is not found they will arrest all they see upon the premises. . . .

Cooney. It is best for me to quit this.

(Goes to door.)

Ward. Here they are at the door. Sergeant

The Jackdaw

Carden along with them. Hide yourself, Mr. Nestor, if you've anyway to do it at all.

(Sounds of feet and talking and knock at the door. Cooney hides under counter. Nestor lies down on top of bench, spreads his newspaper over him. Mrs. Broderick goes behind counter.)

Nestor (raising paper from his face and looking out). Tommy Nally, I will give you five shillings if you will draw "Tit-Bits" over my feet.

Curtain.

THE WORKHOUSE WARD

PERSONS

MIKE McINERNEY, }
MICHAEL MISKELL, } Paupers.
MRS. DONOHOE, A Countrywoman.

THE WORKHOUSE WARD

SCENE: A ward in Cloon Workhouse. The two old men in their beds.

Michael Miskell. Isn't it a hard case, Mike McInerney, myself and yourself to be left here in the bed, and it the feast day of Saint Colman, and the rest of the ward attending on the Mass.

Mike McInerney. Is it sitting up by the hearth you are wishful to be, Michael Miskell, with cold in the shoulders and with speckled shins? Let you rise up so, and you well able to do it, not like myself that has pains the same as tin-tacks within in my inside.

Michael Miskell. If you have pains within in your inside there is no one can see it or know of it the way they can see my own knees that are swelled up with the rheumatism, and my hands that are twisted in ridges the same as an old cabbage stalk. It is easy to be talking about soreness and about pains, and they maybe not to be in it at all.

Mike McInerney. To open me and to analyse me you would know what sort of a pain and a soreness I have in my heart and in my chest. But I'm not one like yourself to be cursing and praying and tormenting the time the nuns are at hand, thinking to get a bigger share than myself of the nourishment and of the milk.

Michael Miskell. That's the way you do be picking at me and faulting me. I had a share and a good share in my early time, and it's well you know that, and the both of us reared in Skehanagh.

Mike McInerney. You may say that, indeed, we were both of us reared in Skehanagh. Little wonder you to have good nourishment the time we were both rising, and you bringing away my rabbits out of the snare.

Michael Miskell. And you didn't bring away my own eels, I suppose, I was after spearing in the Turlough? Selling them to the nuns in the convent you did, and letting on they to be your own. For you were always a cheater and a schemer, grabbing every earthly thing for your own profit.

Mike McInerney. And you were no grabber yourself, I suppose, till your land and all you had grabbed wore away from you!

Michael Miskell. If I lost it itself, it wa through the crosses I met with and I going through the world. I never was a rambler and a cardplayer like yourself, Mike McInerney, that ran through all and lavished it unknown to your mother !

Mike McInerney. Lavished it, is it ? And, if I did was it you yourself led me to lavish it or some other one ? It is on my own floor I would be to-day and in the face of my family, but for the misfortune I had to be put with a bad next door neighbour that was yourself. What way did my means go from me is it ? Spending on fencing, spending on walls, making up gates, putting up doors, that would keep your hens and your ducks from coming in through starvation on my floor, and every fourfooted beast you had from preying and trespassing on my oats and my mangolds and my little lock of hay !

Michael Miskell. O to listen to you ! And I striving to please you and to be kind to you and to close my ears to the abuse you would be calling and letting out of your mouth. To trespass on your crops is it ? Its little temptation there was for my poor beasts to ask to cross the mering. My God Almighty ! What had you but a little corner of a field !

Mike McInerney. And what do you say to my garden that your two pigs had destroyed on me the year of the big tree being knocked, and they making gaps in the wall.

Michael Miskell. Ah, there does be a great deal of gaps knocked in a twelvemonth. Why wouldn't they be knocked by the thunder, the same as the tree, or some storm that came up from the west ?

Mike McInerney. It was the west wind, I suppose, that devoured my green cabbage ? And that rooted up my Champion potatoes ? And that ate the gooseberries themselves from off the bush ?

Michael Miskell. What are you saying ? The two quietest pigs ever I had, no way wicked and well ringed. They were not ten minutes in it. It would be hard for them eat strawberries in that time, let alone gooseberries that's full of thorns.

Mike McInerney. They were not quiet, but very ravenous pigs you had that time, as active as a fox they were, killing my young ducks. Once they had blood tasted you couldn't stop them.

Michael Miskell. And what happened myself the fair day of Esserkelly, the time I was passing your door ? Two brazened dogs that rushed out and took a piece of me. I never was the better of it or of the start I got, but wasting from then till now !

Mike McInerney. Thinking you were a wild beast they did, that had made his escape out of the travelling show, with the red eyes of you and the ugly face of you, and the two crooked legs of you that wouldn't hardly stop a pig in a gap. Sure any dog that had any life in it at all would be roused and stirred seeing the like of you going the road !

Michael Miskell. I did well taking out a summons against you that time. It is a great wonder you not to have been bound over through your lifetime, but the laws of England is queer.

Mike McInerney. What ailed me that I did not summons yourself after you stealing away the clutch of eggs I had in the barrel, and I away in Ardahan searching out a clocking hen.

Michael Miskell. To steal your eggs is it ? Is that what you are saying now ? (Holds up his hands.) The Lord is in heaven, and Peter and the saints, and yourself that was in Ardahan that day put a hand on them as soon as myself ! Isn't it a bad story for me to be wearing out my days beside you the same as a spancellor goat. Chained I am and tethered I am to a man that is ramsacking his mind for lies !

Mike McInerney. If it is a bad story for you,

150 The Workhouse Ward

Michael Miskell, it is a worse story again for myself. A Miskell to be next and near me through the whole of the four quarters of the year. I never heard there to be any great name on the Miskells as there was on my own race and name.

Michael Miskell. You didn't, is it? Well, you could hear it if you had but ears to hear it. Go across to Lisheen Crannagh and down to the sea and to Newtown Lynch and the mills of Duras and you'll find a Miskell, and as far as Dublin!

Mike McInerney. What signifies Crannagh and the mills of Duras? Look at all my own generations that are buried at the Seven Churches. And how many generations of the Miskells are buried in it? Answer me that!

Michael Miskell. I tell you but for the wheat that was to be sowed there would be more side cars and more common cars at my father's funeral (God rest his soul!) than at any funeral ever left your own door. And as to my mother, she was a Cuffe from Claregalway, and it's she had the purer blood!

Mike McInerney. And what do you say to the banshee? Isn't she apt to have knowledge of the ancient race? Was ever she heard to screech or to cry for the Miskells? Or for the Cusses from Claregalway? She was not, but for the six families, the Hyneses, the Foxes, the Faheys, the Dooleys, the McInerneys. It is of the nature of the McInerneys she is I am thinking, crying them the same as a king's children.

Michael Miskell. It is a pity the banshee not to be crying for yourself at this minute, and giving you a warning to quit your lies and your chat and your arguing and your contrary ways; for there is no one under the rising sun could stand you. I tell you you are not behaving as in the presence of the Lord!

Mike McInerney. Is it wishful for my death you are? Let it come and meet me now and welcome so long as it will part me from yourself! And I say, and I would kiss the book on it, I to have one request only to be granted, and I leaving it in my will, it is what I would request, nine furrows of the field, nine ridges of the hills, nine waves of the ocean to be put betw your grave and my own grave the time we be laid in the ground!

Michael Miskell. Amen to that! Nine ridges, is it? No, but let the whole ridge of the world separate us till the Day of Judgment! I would not be laid anear you at the Seven Churches, I to get Ireland without a divide!

152 The Workhouse Ward

Mike McInerney. And after that again! I'd sooner than ten pound in my hand, I to know that my shadow and my ghost will not be knocking about with your shadow and your ghost, and the both of us waiting our time. I'd sooner be delayed in Purgatory! Now, have you anything to say?

Michael Miskell. I have everything to say, if I had but the time to say it!

Mike McInerney (sitting up). Let me up out of this till I'll choke you!

Michael Miskell. You scolding pauper you!

Mike McInerney (shaking his fist at him). Wait a while!

Michael Miskell (shaking his fist). Wait a while yourself!

(Mrs. Donohoe comes in with a parcel. She is a countrywoman with a frilled cap and a shawl. She stands still a minute. The two old men lie down and compose themselves.)

Mrs. Donohoe. They bade me come up here by the stair. I never was in this place at all. I don't know am I right. Which now of the two of ye is Mike McInerney?

Mike McInerney. Who is it is calling me by my name?

Mrs. Donohoe. Sure amn't I your sister, Honor

McInerney that was, that is now Honor Donohoe.

Mike McInerney. So you are, I believe. I didn't know you till you pushed anear me. It is time indeed for you to come see me, and I in this place five year or more. Thinking me to be no credit to you, I suppose, among that tribe of the Donohoes. I wonder they to give you leave to come ask am I living yet or dead ?

Mrs. Donohoe. Ah, sure, I buried the whole string of them. Himself was the last to go. (Wipes her eyes.) The Lord be praised he got a fine natural death. Sure we must go through our crosses. And he got a lovely funeral; it would delight you to hear the priest reading the Mass. My poor John Donohoe! A nice clean man; you could'nt but be fond of him. Very severe on the tobacco he was, but he wouldn't touch the drink.

Mike McInerney. And is it in Curranroe you are living yet ?

Mrs. Donohoe. It is so. He left all to myself. But it is a lonesome thing the head of a house to have died !

Mike McInerney. I hope that he has left you a nice way of living ?

Mrs. Donohoe. Fair enough, fair enough. A wide lovely house I have ; a few acres of grass land . . . the grass does be very sweet that grows among the stones. And as to the sea, there is something from it every day of the year, a handful of periwinkles to make kitchen, or cockles maybe. There is many a thing in the sea is not decent, but cockles is fit to put before the Lord !

Mike McInerney. You have all that ! And you without ere a man in the house ?

Mrs. Donohoe. 'It is what I am thinking, yourself might come and keep me company. It is no credit to me a brother of my own to be in this place at all.

Mike McInerney. I'll go with you ! Let me out of this ! It is the name of the McInerneys will be rising on every side !

Mrs. Donohoe. I don't know. I was ignorant of you being kept to the bed.

Mike McInerney. I am not kept to it, but maybe an odd time when there is a colic rises up within me. My stomach always gets better the time there is a change in the moon. I'd like well to draw anear you. My heavy blessing on you, Honor Donohoe, for the hand you have held out to me this day.

Mrs. Denohoe. Sure you could be keeping the fire in, and stirring the pot with the bit of Indian meal for the hens, and milking the goat and taking the tacklings off the donkey at the door; and maybe putting out the cabbage plants in their time. For when the old man died the garden died.

Mike McInerney. I could to be sure, and be cutting the potatoes for seed. What luck could there be in a place and a man not to be in it? Is that now a suit of clothes you have brought with you?

Mrs. Donohoe. It is so, the way you will be tasty coming in among the neighbours at Curranroe.

Mike McInerney. My joy you are! It is well you earned me! Let me up out of this! (He sits up and spreads out the clothes and tries on coat.) That now is a good frieze coat . . . and a hat in the fashion . . . (he puts on hat.)

Michael Miskell (alarmed). And is it going out of this you are, Mike McInerney?

Mike McInerney. Don't you hear I am going? To Curranroe I am going. Going I am to a place where I will get every good thing!

Michael Miskell. And is it to leave me here after you you will?

Mike McInerney (in a rising chant). Every good thing! The goat and the kid are there, the sheep and the lamb are there, the cow does be running and she coming to be milked!

156 The Workhouse Ward

Ploughing and seed sowing, blossom at Christmas time, the cuckoo speaking through the dark days of the year! Ah, what are you talking about? Wheat high in hedges, no talk about the rept! Salmon in the rivers as plenty as turf! Spending and getting and nothing scarce! Sport and pleasure, and music on the strings! Age will go from me and I will be young again. Geese and turkeys for the hundreds and drink for the whole world!

Michael Miskell. Ah, Mike, is it truth you are saying, you to go from me and to leave me with rude people and with townspeople, and with people of every parish in the union, and they having no respect for me or no wish for me at all!

Mike McInerney. Whist now and I'll leave you . . . my pipe (hands it over); and I'll engage it is Honor Donohoe won't refuse to be sending you a few ounces of tobacco an odd time, and neighbours coming to the fair in November or in the month of May.

Michael Miskell. Ah, what signifies tobacco? All that I am craving is the talk. There to be no one at all to say out to whatever thought might be rising in my innate mind! To be lying here and no conversible person in it would be the abomination of misery!

The Workhouse Ward 157

Mike McInerney. Look now, Honor. . . . It is what I often heard said, two to be better than one. . . . Sure if you had an old trouser was full of holes . . . or a skirt . . . wouldn't you put another in under it that might be as tattered as itself, and the two of them together would make some sort of a decent show ?

Mrs. Donohoe. Ah, what are you saying ? There is no holes in that suit I brought you now, but as sound it is as the day I spun it for himself.

Mike McInerney. It is what I am thinking, Honor . . . I do be weak an odd time . . . any load I would carry, it preys upon my side . . . and this man does be weak an odd time with the swelling in his knees . . . but the two of us together it's not likely it is at the one time we would fail. Bring the both of us with you, Honor, and the height of the castle of luck on you, and the both of us together will make one good hardy man'!

Mrs. Donohoe. I'd like my job ! Is it queer in the head you are grown asking me to bring in a stranger off the road ?

Michael Miskell. I am not, ma'am, but an old neighbour I am. If I had forecasted this asking I would have asked it myself. Michael

158 The Workhouse Ward

Miskell I am, that was in the next house to you in Skehanagh !

Mrs. Donohoe. For pity's sake ! Michael Miskell is it ? That's worse again. Yourself and Mike that never left fighting and scolding and attacking one another ! Sparring at one another like two young pups you were, and threatening one another after like two grown dogs !

Mike McInerney. All the quarrelling was ever in the place it was, myself did it. Sure his anger rises fast and goes away like the wind. Bring him out with myself now, Honor Donohoe, and God bless you.

Mrs. Donohoe. Well, then, I will not bring him out, and I will not bring yourself out, and you not to learn better sense. Are you making yourself ready to come ?

Mike McInerney. I am thinking, maybe . . . it is a mean thing for a man that is shivering into seventy years to go changing from place to place.

Mrs. Donohoe. Well, take your luck or leave it. All I asked was to save you from the hurt and the harm of the year.

Mike McInerney. Bring the both of us with you or I will not stir out of this.

Mrs. Donohoe. Give me back my fine suit so (begins gathering up the clothes), till I'll go look for a man of my own !

Mike McInerney. Let you go so, as you are so unnatural and so disobliging, and look for some man of your own, God help him ! For I will not go with you at all !

Mrs. Donohoe. It is too much time I lost with you, and dark night waiting to overtake me on the road. Let the two of you stop together, and the back of my hand to you. It is I will leave you there the same as God left the Jews !

(She goes out. The old men lie down and are silent for a moment.)

Michael Miskell. Maybe the house is not so wide as what she says.

Mike McInerney. Why wouldn't it be wide ?

Michael Miskell. Ah, there does be a good deal of middling poor houses down by the sea.

Mike McInerney. What would you know about wide houses ? Whatever sort of a house you had yourself it was too wide for the provision you had into it.

Michael Miskell. Whatever provision I had in my house it was wholesome provision and natural provision. Herself and her periwinkles ! Periwinkles is a hungry sort of food.

Mike McInerney. Stop your impudence and your chat or it will be the worse for you. I'd bear with my own father and mother as long as any man would, but if they'd vex me I would give them the length of a rope as soon as another !

Michael Miskell. I would never ask at all to go eating periwinkles.

Mike McInerney (sitting up). Have you any-one to fight me ?

Michael Miskell (whimpering). I have not, only the Lord !

Mike McInerney. Let you leave putting insults on me so, and death picking at you !

Michael Miskell. Sure I am saying nothing at all to displease you. It is why I wouldn't go eating periwinkles, I'm in dread I might swallow the pin.

Mike McInerney. Who in the world wide is asking you to eat them ? You're as tricky as a fish in the full tide !

Michael Miskell. Tricky is it ! Oh, my curse and the curse of the four and twenty men upon you !

Mike McInerney. That the worm may chew you from skin to marrow bone ! (Seizes his pillow.)

Michael Miskell (seizing his own pillow). I'll leave my death on you, you scheming vagabone !

The Workhouse Ward 161

Mike McInerney. By cripes ! I'll pull out your pin feathers ! (Throwing pillow.)

Michael Miskell (throwing pillow). You tyrant ! You big bully you !

Mike McInerney (throwing pillow and seizing mug). Take this so, you stobbing ruffian you !

(They throw all within their reach at one another, mugs, prayer books, pipes, &c.)

Curtain.

THE TRAVELLING MAN

PERSONS.

A Mother. A Child. A Travelling Man.

THE TRAVELLING MAN

A MIRACLE PLAY.

SCENE : A cottage kitchen. A woman setting out a bowl and jug and board on the table for breadmaking.

Child. What is it you are going to make, mother ?

Mother. I am going to make a grand cake with white flour. Seeds I will put in it. Maybe I'll make a little cake for yourself too. You can be baking it in the little pot while the big one will be baking in the big pot.

Child. It is a pity daddy to be away at the fair on a Samhain night.

Mother. I must make my feast all the same, for Samhain night is more to me than to any other one. It was on this night seven years I first came into this house.

Child. You will be taking down those plates from the dresser so, those plates with flowers on them, and be putting them on the table.

166 The Travelling Man

Mother. I will. I will set out the house to-day, and bring down the best delf, and put whatever thing is best on the table, because of the great thing that happened me seven years ago.

Child. What great thing was that ?

Mother. I was after being driven out of the house where I was a serving girl. . . .

Child. Where was that house ? Tell me about it.

Mother (sitting down and pointing southward). It is over there I was living, in a farmer's house up on Slieve Echtge, near to Slieve na n-Or, the Golden Mountain.

Child. The Golden Mountain ! That must be a grand place.

Mother. Not very grand indeed, but bare and cold enough at that time of the year. Anyway, I was driven out a Samhain day like this, because of some things that were said against me.

Child. What did you do then ?

Mother. What had I to do but to go walking the bare bog road through the rough hills where there was no shelter to find, and the sharp wind going through me, and the red mud heavy on my shoes. I came to Kilbecanty. . . .

Child. I know Kilbecanty. That is where the woman in the shop gave me sweets out of a bottle.

Mother. So she might now, but that night her door was shut and all the doors were shut ; and I saw through the windows the boys and the girls sitting round the hearth and playing their games, and I had no courage to ask for shelter. In dread I was they might think some shameful thing of me, and I going the road alone in the night-time.

Child. Did you come here after that ?

Mother. I went on down the hill in the darkness, and with the dint of my trouble and the length of the road my strength failed me, and I had like to fall. So I did fall at the last, meeting with a heap of broken stones by the roadside.

Child. I hurt my knee one time I fell on the stones.

Mother. It was then the great thing happened. I saw a stranger coming towards me, a very tall man, the best I ever saw, bright and shining that you could see him through the darkness ; and I knew him to be no common man.

Child. Who was he ?

Mother. It is what I thought, that he was the King of the World.

The Travelling Man

Child. Had he a crown like a King ?

Mother. If he had, it was made of the twigs of a bare blackthorn ; but in his hand he had a green brafich, that never grew on a tree of this world. He took me by the hand, and he led me over the stepping-stones outside to this door, and he bade me to go in and I would find good shelter. I was kneeling down to thank him, but he raised me up and he said, " I will come to see you some other time. And do not shut up your heart in the things I give you," he said, " but have a welcome before me."

Child. Did he go away then ?

Mother. I saw him no more after that, but I did as he bade me. (She stands up and goes to the door.) I came in like this, and your father was sitting there by the hearth, a lonely man that was after losing his wife. He was alone and I was alone, and we married one another ; and I never wanted since for shelter or safety. And a good wife I made him, and a good house-keeper.

Child. Will the King come again to the house ?

Mother. I have his word for it he will come, but he did not come yet ; it is often your father and myself looked out the door of a Samhain night, thinking to see him.

Child. I hope he won't come in the night-time, and I asleep.

Mother. It is of him I do be thinking every year, and I setting out the house, and making a cake for the supper.

Child. What will he do when he comes in ?

Mother. He will sit over there in the chair, and maybe he will taste a bit of the cake. I will call in all the neighbours ; I will tell them he is here. They will not be keeping it in their mind against me then that I brought nothing, coming to the house. They will know I am before any of them, the time they know who it is has come to visit me. They will all kneel down and ask for his blessing. But the best blessing will be on the house he came to of himself.

Child. And are you going to make the cake now ?

Mother. I must make it now indeed, or I will be late with it. I am late as it is ; I was expecting one of the neighbours to bring me white flour from the town. I'll wait no longer, I'll go borrow it in some place. There will be a wedding in the stonecutter's house Thursday, it's likely there will be flour in the house.

Child. Let me go along with you.

Mother. It is best for you to stop here. Be a good child now, and don't be meddling with the things on the table. Sit down there by the hearth and break up those little sticks I am after bringing in. Make a little heap of them now before me, and we will make a good fire to bake the cake. See now how many will you break. Don't go out the door while I'm away, I would be in dread of you going near the river and it in flood. Behave yourself well now. Be counting the sticks as you break them.

(She goes out.)

Child (sitting down and breaking sticks across his knee). One—and two—O I can break this one into a great many, one, two, three, four.—This one is wet—I don't like a wet one—five, six—that is a great heap.—Let me try that great big one.—That is too hard.—I don't think mother could break that one.—Daddy could break it.

(Half-door is opened and a travelling man comes in. He wears a ragged white flannel shirt, and, mud-stained trousers. He is bareheaded and barefooted, and carries a little branch in his hand.)

Travelling Man (stooping over the child and taking the stick). Give it here to me and hold this (He puts the branch in the child's hand while he takes the stick and breaks it.)

The Travelling Man 171

Child. That is a good branch, apples on it and flowers. The tree at the mill has apples yet, but all the flowers are gone. Where did you get this branch?

Travelling Man. I got it in a garden a long way off.

Child. Where is the garden? Where do you come from?

Travelling Man (pointing southward). I have come from beyond those hills.

Child. Is it from the Golden Mountain you are come? From Slieve na n-Or?

Travelling Man. That is where I come from surely, from the Golden Mountain. I would like to sit down and rest for a while.

Child. Sit down here beside me. We must not go near the table or touch anything, or mother will be angry. Mother is going to make a beautiful cake, a cake that will be fit for a King that might be coming in to our supper.

Travelling Man. I will sit here with you on the floor.

(Sits down.)

Child. Tell me now about the Golden Mountain.

Travelling Man. There is a garden in it, and there is a tree in the garden that has fruit and flowers at the one time.

Child. Like this branch

Travelling Man. Just like that little branch.

Child. What other things are in the garden ?

Travelling Man. There are birds of all colours that sing at every hour, the way the people will come to their prayers. And there is a high wall about the garden.

Child. What way can the people get through the wall ?

Travelling Man. There are four gates in the wall : a gate of gold, and a gate of silver, and a gate of crystal, and a gate of white brass.

Child (taking up the sticks). I will make a garden. I will make a wall with these sticks.

Travelling Man. This big stick will make the first wall.

(They build a square wall with sticks.)

Child (taking up branch). I will put this in the middle. This is the tree. I will get something to make it stand up. (Gets up and looks at dresser.) I can't reach it, get up and give me that shining jug.

(Travelling Man gets up and gives him the jug.)

Travelling Man. Here it is for you.

Child (puts it within the walls and sets the branch in it.) Tell me something else that is in the garden ?

The Travelling Man 173

Travelling Man. There are four wells of water in it, that are as clear as glass.

Child. Get me down those cups, those flowery cups, we will put them for wells. (He hands them down). Now I will make the gates, give me those plates for gates, not those ugly ones, those nice ones at the top.

(He takes them down and they put them on the four sides for gates. The Child gets up and looks at it.)

Travelling Man. There now, it is finished.

Child. Is it as good as the other garden? How can we go to the Golden Mountain to see the other garden?

Travelling Man. We can ride to it.

Child. But we have no horse.

Travelling Man. This form will be our horse. (He draws a form out of the corner, and sits down astride on it, putting the child before him.) Now, off we go! (Sings, the child repeating the refrain)—

Come ride and ride to the garden,
Come ride and ride with a will:
For the flower comes with the fruit there
Beyond a hill and a hill.

Refrain.

Come ride and ride to the garden,
Come ride like the March wind;
There's barley there, and water there,
And stabling to your mind,

174 The Travelling Man

Travelling Man. How did you like that ride, little horseman ?

Child. Go on again ! I want another ride !

Travelling Man (sings)—

° The Archangels stand in a row there
And all the garden bless,
The Archangel Axel, Victor the angel
Work at the cider press.

Refrain.

Come ride and ride to the garden, &c.

Child. We will soon be at the Golden Mountain now. Ride again. Sing another song.

O scent of the broken apples !
O shuffling of holy shoes !
Beyond a hill and a hill there
In the land that no one knows.

Refrain.

Come ride and ride to the garden, &c.

Child. Now another ride.

Travelling Man. This will be the last. It will be a good ride.

(The mother comes in. She stares for a second, then throws down her basket and snatches up the child.)

Mother. Did ever anyone see the like of that !
A common beggar, a travelling man off the roads, to be holding the child ! To be leaving his ragged arms about him as if he was of his own sort ! Get out of that, whoever you are, and quit this house or I'll call to some that will make you quit it.

Child. Do not send him out ! He is not a bad man ; he is a good man ; he was playing horses with me. He has grand songs.

Mother. Let him get away out of this now, himself and his share of songs. Look at the way he has your bib destroyed that I was after washing in the morning !

Child. He was holding me on the horse. We were riding, I might have fallen. He held me.

Mother. I give you my word you are done now with riding horses. Let him go on his road. I have no time to be cleaning the place after the like of him.

Child. He is tired. Let him stop here till evening.

Travelling Man. Let me rest here for a while I have been travelling a long way.

Mother. Where did you come from to-day ?

Travelling Man. I came over Slieve Echtge from Slieve na n-Or. I had no house to stop in. I walked the long bog road, the wind was going through me, there was no shelter to be got, the red mud of the road was heavy on my feet.

176 The Travelling Man

I got no welcome in the village, and so I came on to this place, to the rising of the river at Ballylee.

Mother. It is best for you to go on to the town. It is not far for you to go. We will maybe have company coming in here.

(She pours out flour into a bowl and begins mixing it.)

Travelling Man. Will you give me a bit of that dough to bring with me? I have gone a long time fasting.

Mother. It is not often in the year I make bread like this. There are a few cold potatoes on the dresser, are they not good enough for you? There is many a one would be glad to get them.

Travelling Man. Whatever you will give me, I will take it.

Mother (going to the dresser for the potatoes and looking at the shelves). What in the earthly world has happened all the delf? Where are the jugs gone and the plates? They were all in it when I went out a while ago.

Child (hanging his head). We were making a garden with them. We were making that garden there in the corner.

Mother. Is that what you were doing after I bidding you to sit still and to keep yourself quiet? It is to tie you in the chair I will another time! My grand jugs! (She picks them up and wipes them.) My plates that I bought the first time I ever went marketing into Gort. The best in the shop they were. (One slips from her hand and breaks.) Look at that now, look what you are after doing.

The Travelling Man 177

(She gives a slap at the child.)

Travelling Man. Do not blame the child. It was I myself took them down from the dresser.

"Mother (turning on him). It was you took them! What business had you doing that? It's the last time a tramp or a tinker or a rogue of the roads will have a chance of laying his hand on anything in this house. It is jailed you should be! What did you want touching the dresser at all? Is it looking you were for what you could bring away?"

Travelling Man (taking the child's hands). I would not refuse these hands that were held out for them. If it was for the four winds of the world he had asked, I would have put their bridles into these innocent hands.

Mother (taking up the jug and throwing the branch on the floor). Get out of this! Get out of this I tell you! There is no shelter here for the like of you! Look at that mud on the floor!

You are not fit to come into the house of any decent respectable person !

(The room begins to darken.

Travelling Man. Indeed, I am more used to the roads than to the shelter of houses. It is often I have spent the night on the bare hills.

Mother. No wonder in that ! (She begins to sweep floor.) Go out of this now to whatever company you are best used to, whatever they are. The worst of people it is likely they are, thieves and drunkards and shameless women.

Travelling Man. Maybe so. Drunkards and thieves and shameless women, stones that have fallen, that are trodden under foot, bodies that are spoiled with sores, bodies that are worn with fasting, minds that are broken with much sinning, the poor, the mad, the bad. . .

Mother. Get out with you ! Go back to your friends, I say !

Travelling Man. I will go. I will go back to the high road that is walked by the bare feet of the poor, by the innocent bare feet of children. I will go back to the rocks and the wind, to the cries of the trees in the storm ! (He goes out.)

Child. He has forgotten his branch ! .

(Takes it and follows him.

Mother (still sweeping). My good plates from the dresser, and dirty red mud on the floor, and the sticks all scattered in every place. (Stoops to pick them up.) Where is the child gone? (Goes to door.) I don't see him—he couldn't have gone to the river—it is getting dark—the bank is slippery. Come back! Come back! Where are you? (Child runs in.)

The Travelling Man 179

Mother. O where were you? I was in dread it was to the river you were gone, or into the river.

Child. I went after him. He is gone over the river.

Mother. He couldn't do that. He couldn't go through the flood.

Child. He did go over it. He was as if walking on the water. There was a light before his feet.

Mother. That could not be so. What put that thought in your mind?

Child. I called to him to come back for the branch, and he turned where he was in the river, and he bade me to bring it back, and to show it to yourself.

Mother (taking the branch). There are fruit and flowers on it. It is a branch that is not of any earthly tree. (Falls on her knees.) He is gone, he is gone, and I never knew him! He was that stranger that gave me all! He is the King of the World!

THE GAOL GATE

PERSONS.

MARY CAHEL, an old woman.

MARY CUSHIN, her daughter-in-law.

THE GATEKEEPER.

THE GAOL GATE

SCENE : Outside the gate of Galway Gaol. Two countrywomen, one in a long dark cloak, the other with a shawl over her head, have just come in. It is just before dawn.

Mary Cahel. I am thinking we are come to our journey's end, and that this should be the gate of the gaol.

Mary Cushin. It is certain it could be no other place. There was surely never in the world such a terrible great height of a wall.

Mary Cahel. He that was used to the mountain to be closed up inside of that ! What call had he to go moonlighting or to bring himself into danger at all ?

Mary Cushin. It is no wonder a man to grow faint-hearted and he shut away from the light. I never would wonder at all at anything he might be driven to say.

Mary Cahel. There were good men were gaoled before him never gave in to anyone at all. It is what I am thinking, Mary, he might not have done what they say.

The Gaol Gate

Mary Cushin. Sure you heard what the neighbours were calling the time their own boys were brought away. "It is Denis Cahel," they were saying, "that informed against them in the gaol."

Mary Cahel. There is nothing that is bad or is wicked but a woman will put it out of her mouth, and she seeing them that belong to her brought away from her sight and her home.

Mary Cushin. Terry Fury's mother was saying it, and Pát Ruane's mother and his wife. They came out calling it after me, "It was Denis swore against them in the gaol!" The sergeant was boasting, they were telling me, the day he came searching Daire-caol, it was he himself got his confession with drink he had brought him in the gaol.

Mary Cahel. They might have done that, the ruffians, and the boy have no blame on him at all. Why should it be cast up against him, and his wits being out of him with drink?

Mary Cushin. If he did give their names up itself, there was maybe no wrong in it at all. Sure its known to all the village it was Terry that fired the shot.

Mary Cahel. Stop your mouth now and don't be talking. You havn't any sense worth while.

Let the sergeant do his own business with no help from the neighbours at all.

Mary Cushin. It was Pat Ruane that tempted them on account of some vengeance of his own. Every creature knows my poor Denis never handled a gun in his life.

Mary Cabel (taking from under her cloak a long blue envelope). I wish we could know what is in the letter they are after sending us through the post. Isn't it a great pity for the two of us to be without learning at all ?

Mary Cushin. There are some of the neighbours have learning, and you bade me not bring it anear them. It would maybe have told us what way he is or what time he will be quitting the gaol.

Mary Cabel. There is wonder on me, Mary Cushin, that you would not be content with what I say. It might be they put down in the letter that Denis informed on the rest.

Mary Cushin. I suppose it is all we have to do so, to stop here for the opening of the door. It's a terrible long road from Slieve Echtge we were travelling the whole of the night.

Mary Cabel. There was no other thing for us to do but to come and to give him a warning. What way would he be facing the neighbours, and he to come back to Daire-caol ?

Mary Cushin. It is likely they will let him go free, Mary, before many days will be out. What call have they to be keeping him ? It is certain they promised him his life.

Mary Cabel. If they promised him his life, Mary Cushin, he must live it in some other place. Let him never see Daire-caol again, or Daroda or Druimdarod.

Mary Cushin. O, Mary, what place will we bring him to, and we driven from the place that we know ? What person that is sent among strangers can have one day's comfort on earth ?

Mary Cabel. It is only among strangers, I am thinking, he could be hiding his story at all. It is best for him to go to America, where the people are as thick as grass.

Mary Cushin. What way could he go to America and he having no means in his hand ? There's himself and myself to make the voyage and the little one-teen at home.

Mary Cabel. I would sooner to sell the holding than to ask for the price paid for blood. There'll be money enough for the two of you to settle your debts and to go.

Mary Cushin. And what would yourself be doing and we to go over the sea ? It is not among the neighbours you would wish to be ending your days.

Mary Cabel. I am thinking there is no one would know me in the workhouse at Oughterard. I wonder could I go in there, and I not to give them my name ?

Mary Cushin. Ah, don't be talking foolishness. What way could I bring the child ? Sure he's hardly out of the cradle ; he'd be lost out there in the States.

Mary Cabel. I could bring him into the workhouse, I to give him some other name. You could send for him when you'd be settled or have some place of your own.

Mary Cushin. It is very cold at the dawn. It is time for them open the door. I wish I had brought a potato or a bit of a cake or of bread.

Mary Cabel. I'm in dread of it being opened and not knowing what will we hear. The night that Denis was taken he had a great cold and a cough.

Mary Cushin. I think I hear some person coming. There's a sound like the rattling of keys. God and His Mother protect us ! I'm in dread of being found here at all !

[The gate is opened, and the Gatekeeper is seen with a lantern in his hand.]

Gatekeeper. What are you doing here, women ? 'It's no place to be spending the night time.

Mary Cahel. It is to speak with my son I am asking, that is gaoled these eight weeks and a day.

Gatekeeper. If you have no order to visit him it's as good for you go away home.

Mary Cahel. I got this letter ere yesterday. It might be it is giving me leave..

Gatekeeper. If that's so he should be under the doctor, or in the hospital ward.

Mary Cahel. It's no wonder if he's down with the hardship, for he had a great cough and a cold. •

Gatekeeper. Give me here the letter to read it. Sure it never was opened at all.

Mary Cahel. Myself and this woman have no learning. We were loth to trust any other one.

Gatekeeper. It was posted in Galway the twentieth, and this is the last of the month.

Mary Cahel. We never thought to call at the post office. It was chance brought it to us in the end.

Gatekeeper (having read letter). You poor unfortunate women, don't you know Denis Cahel is dead ? You'd a right to come this time yesterday if you wished any last word at all.

Mary Cahel (kneeling down). God and His Mother protect us and have mercy 'n Denis's soul !

Mary Cushin. What is the man after saying ?
Sure it cannot be Denis is dead ?

Gatekeeper. Dead since the dawn of yesterday, and another man now in his cell. I'll go see who has charge of his clothing if you're wanting to bring it away.

[He goes in. The dawn has begun to break.]

Mary Cabel. There is lasting kindness in Heaven when no kindness is found upon earth. There will surely be mercy found for him, and not the hard judgment of men ! But my boy that was best in the world, that never rose a hair of my head, to have died with his name under blemish, and left a great shame on his child ! Better for him have killed the whole world than to give any witness at all ! Have you no word to say, Mary Cushin ? Am I left here to keen him alone ?

Mary Cushin (who has sunk on to the step before the door, rocking herself and keening). Oh, Denis, my heart is broken you to have died with the hard word upon you ! My grief you to be alone now that spent so many nights in company !

What way will I be going back, through Gort and through Kilbecanty ? The people will not be coming out keening you, they will say no prayer for the rest of your soul !

What way will I be the Sunday and I going up the hill to the Mass! Every woman with her own comrade, and Mary Cushin to be walking her lone!

What way will I be the Monday and the neighbours turning their heads from the house? The turf Denis cut lying on the bog, and no well-wisher to bring it to the hearth!

What way will I be in the night time, and none but the dog calling after you? Two women to be mixing a cake, and not a man in the house to break it!

What way will I sow the field, and no man to drive the furrow? The sheaf to be scattered before spring time that was brought together at the harvest!

I would not begrudge you, Denis, and you leaving praises after you. The neighbours keening along with me would be better to me than an estate.

But my grief your name to be blackened in the time of the blackening of the rushes! Your name never to rise up again in the growing time of the year! (She ceases keening and turns towards the old woman.) But tell me, Mary, do you think would they give us the body of Denis? I would lay him out with myself only; I would hire some man to dig the grave.

(The Gatekeeper opens the gate and hands out some clothes.)

Gatekeeper. There now is all he brought in with him ; the flannels and the shirt and the shoes. It is little they are worth altogether ; those mountainy boys do be poor.

Mary Cushin. They had a right to give him time to ready himself the day they brought him to the magistrates. He to be wearing his Sunday coat, they would see he was a decent boy. Tell me where will they bury him, the way I can follow after him through the street ? There is no other one to show respect to him but Mary Cahel, his mother, and myself.

Gatekeeper. That is not to be done. He is buried since yesterday in the field that is belonging to the gaol.

Mary Cushin. It is a great hardship that to have been done, and not one of his own there to follow after him at all.

Gatekeeper. Those that break the law must be made an example of. Why would they be laid out like a well behaved man ? A long rope and a short burying, that is the order for a man that is hanged.

Mary Cushin. A man that was hanged ! O Denis, was it they that made an end of you and not the great God at all ? His curse and my own curse upon them that did not let you die on the pillow ! The curse of God be fulfilled that was on them before they were born ! My curse upon them that brought harm on you, and on Terry Fury that fired the shot !

Mary Cahel (standing up)*. And the other boys, did they hang them along with him, Terry Fury and Pat Ruane that were brought from Daire-caol ?

Gatekeeper. They did not, but set them free twelve hours ago. It is likely you may have passed them in the night time.

Mary Cushin. Set free is it, and Denis made an end of ? What justice is there in the world at all ?

Gatekeeper. He was taken near the house. They knew his footmark. There was no witness given against the rest worth while.

Mary Cahel. Then the sergeant was lying and the people were lying when they said Denis Cahel had informed in the gaol ?

Gatekeeper. I have no time to be stopping here talking. The judge got no evidence and the law set them free.

(He goes in and shuts gate after him.)

Mary Cahel (holding out her hands). Are there any people in the streets at all till I call on them to come hither ? Did they ever hear in Galway such a thing to be done, a man to die for his neighbour ?

Tell it out in the streets for the people to hear, Denis Cahel from Slieve Echtge is dead. It was Denis Cahel from Daire-caol that died in the place of his neighbour !

It is he was young and comely and strong, the best reaper and the best hurler. It was not a little thing for him to die, and he protecting his neighbour !

Gather up, Mary Cushin, the clothes for your child ; they'll be wanted by this one and that one. The boys crossing the sea in the springtime will be craving a thread for a memory.

One word to the judge and Denis was free, they offered him all sorts of riches. They brought him drink in the gaol, and gold, to swear away the life of his neighbour !

Pat Ruane was no good friend to him at all, but a foolish, wild companion ; it was Terry Fury knocked a gap in the wall and sent in the calves to our meadow.

Denis would not speak, he shut his mouth, he would never be an informer. It is no lie he would have said at all giving witness against Terry Fury.

I will go through Gort and Kilbecanty and

The Gaol Gate

Druimdarod and Daroda ; I will call to the people and the singers at the fairs to make a great praise for Denis !

The child he left in the house that is shook, it is great will be his boast in his father ! All Ireland will have a welcome before him, and all the people in Boston.

I to stoop on a stick through half a hundred years, I will never be tired with praising ! Come hither, Mary Cushin, till we'll shout it through the roads, Denis Cahel died for his neighbour !

SPREADING THE NEWS.

THE idea of this play first came to me as a tragedy. I kept seeing as in a picture people sitting by the roadside, and a girl passing to the market, gay and fearless. And then I saw her passing by the same place at evening, her head hanging, the heads of others turned from her, because of some sudden story that had risen out of a chance word, and had snatched away her good name.

But comedy and not tragedy was wanted at our theatre to put beside the high poetic work, The King's Threshold, The Shadowy Waters, On Baile's Strand, The Well of the Saints; and I let laughter have its way with the little play. I was delayed in beginning it for a while, because I could only think of Bartley Fallon as dull-witted or silly or ignorant, and the handcuffs seemed too harsh a punishment. But one day by the sea at Duras a melancholy man who was telling me of the crosses he had gone through at home said—"But I'm thinking if I went to America, its long ago to-day I'd be dead. And its a great expense for a poor man to be buried in America." Bartley was born at that moment, and, far from harshness, I felt I was providing him with a happy old age in giving him the lasting glory of that great and crowning day of misfortune.

It has been acted very often by other companies as well as our own, and the Boers have done me the honour of translating and pirating it.

HYACINTH HALVEY.

I WAS pointed out one evening a well-brushed, well-dressed man in the stalls, and was told gossip about him, perhaps not all true, which made me wonder if that appearance and behaviour as of extreme respectability might not now and again be felt a burden.

After a while he translated himself in my mind into Hyacinth; and as one must set one's original a little way off to get a translation rather than a tracing, he found himself in Cloon, where, as in other parts of our country, 'character' is built up or destroyed by a password or an emotion, rather than by experience and deliberation.

The idea was more of a universal one than I knew at the first, and I have had but uneasy appreciation from some apparently blameless friends.

THE RISING OF THE MOON.

WHEN I was a child and came with my elders to Galway for their salmon fishing in the river that rushes past the gaol, I used to look with awe at the window where men were hung, and the dark, closed gate. I used to wonder if ever a prisoner might by some means climb the high, buttressed wall and slip away in the darkness by the canal to the quays, and find friends to hide him under a load of kelp in a fishing boat, as happens to my ballad-singing man. The play was considered offensive to some extreme Nationalists before it was acted, because it showed the police in too favourable a light, and a Unionist paper attacked it after it was acted because the policeman was represented "as a coward and a traitor"; but after the Belfast police strike that same paper praised its "insight into Irish character." After all these ups and downs it passes unchallenged on both sides of the Irish Sea.

THE JACKDAW.

THE first play I wrote was called "Twenty-five." It was played by our company in Dublin and London, and was adapted and translated into Irish and played in America. It was about "A boy of Kilbeggan that saved his old sweetheart from being evicted. It was playing Twenty-five he did it; played with the husband he did, letting him win up to £50."

It was rather sentimental and weak in construction, and for a long time it was an overflowing storehouse of examples of "the faults of my dramatic method." I have at last laid its ghost in "The Jackdaw," and I have not been accused of sentimentality since the appearance of this.

THE WORKHOUSE WARD.

I HEARD of an old man in the workhouse who had been disabled many years before by, I think, a knife thrown at him by his wife in some passionate quarrel.

One day I heard the wife had been brought in there, poor and sick. I wondered how they would meet, and if the old quarrel was still alive, or if they who know the worst of each other would be better pleased with one another's company than with that of strangers.

I wrote a scenario of the play, Dr. Douglas Hyde, getting in plot what he gave back in dialogue, for at that time we thought a dramatic movement in Irish would be helpful to our own as well as to the Gaelic League. Later I tried to rearrange it for our own theatre, and for three players only, but in doing this I found it necessary to write entirely new dialogue, the two old men in the original play obviously talking at an audience in the wards, which is no longer there.

I sometimes think the two scolding paupers are a symbol of ourselves in Ireland—na fearra imnear na uaignear—"it is better to be quarrelling than to be lonesome." The Rajputs, that great fighting race, when they were told they had been brought under the Pax Britannica and must give up war, gave themselves to opium in its place, but Connacht has not yet planted its poppy gardens.

THE TRAVELLING MAN.

An old woman living in a cabin by a bog road on Slieve Echtge told me the legend on which this play is founded, and which I have already published in "Poets and Dreamers."

"There was a poor girl walking the road one night with no place to stop, and the Saviour met her on the road, and He said—"Go up to the house you see a light in; there's a woman dead there, and they'll let you in." So she went, and she found the woman laid out, and the husband and other people; but she worked harder than they all, and she stopped in the house after; and after two quarters the man married her. And one day she was sitting outside the door, picking over a bag of wheat, and the Saviour came again, with the appearance of a poor man, and He asked her for a few grains of the wheat. And she said—"Wouldn't potatoes be good enough for you?" And she called to the girl within to bring out a few potatoes. But He took nine grains of the wheat in His hand and went away; and there wasn't a grain of wheat left in the bag, but all gone. So she ran after Him then to ask Him to forgive her; and she overtook Him on the road, and she asked forgiveness. And He said—"Don't you remember the time you had no house to go to, and I met you on the road, and sent you to a house where you'd live in plenty? And now you wouldn't give Me a few grains of wheat." And she said—"But why didn't you give me a heart that would like to divide it?" That is how she came round on Him. And He said—"From this out, whenever you have plenty in your hands, divide it freely for My sake."

And an old woman who sold sweets in a little shop in Galway, and whose son became a great Dominican preacher, used to say—"Refuse not any, for one may be the Christ."

I gave the Rider's Song, and some of the rest, to W. B. Yeats.

THE GAOL GATE.

I WAS told a story some one had heard, of a man who had gone to welcome his brother coming out of gaol, and heard he had died there before the gates had been opened for him.

I was going to Galway, and at the Gort station I met two cloaked and shawled countrywomen from the slopes of Slieve Echarge, who were obliged to go and see some law official in Galway because of some money left them by a kinsman in Australia. They had never been in a train or to any place farther than a few miles from their own village, and they felt astray and terrified "like blind beasts in a bog" they said, and I took care of them through the day.

An agent was fired at on the road from Athenry, and some men were taken up on suspicion. One of them was a young carpenter from my old home, and in a little time a rumour was put about that he had informed against the others in Galway gaol. When the prisoners were taken across the bridge to the court-house he was hooted by the crowd. But at the trial it was found that he had not informed, that no evidence had been given at all; and bonfires were lighted for him as he went home.

These three incidents coming within a few months wore themselves into this little play, and within three days it had written itself, or been written. I like it better than any in the volume, and I have never changed a word of it.
